RAILROAD SLAUGHTER.

Latest from the Scene of the Boston and Providence Disaster—No More Bodies Recovered.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 20.—The awful accident which occurred at 3 o'clock yesterday morning at the bridge where the Boston and Providence Railroad crosses the Pawcatuck River, continues to be the sensation in this city to-day.

As I telegraphed you last night, the steamboat train from Stonington, for Boston, was wrecked in consequence of the bridge having been carried away some time during the night by the breaking of a dam above it. The bridge stood about 150 feet from Richmond switch, a small station on the line, about eighty miles distant from Providence. The Pawcatuck River is dammed a few hundred yards above the railroad bridge for the purpose of affording water power to some mills situated near that point. Between the railroad bridge and the dam there was a wooden wagon bridge for local traffic and teams. The recent freshets have caused the water above the dam to rise rapidly for several days, until its weight proved too much for the dam, which gave way, and immediately wrecked both of the bridges.

The train consisted of locomotive and tender, three flat freight-cars, one second-class and two first-class passenger-cars, and a smoking-car. As the road approaches the bridge from Stonington it has a deep down grade, thereby giving the train a speed of about forty miles per hour.

As the train neared the wrecked bridge, or rather the place where it had stood—for it was entirely carried away, abutments and all—the dawn was just breaking. The engineer and fireman, it is supposed, saw the danger ahead, but too late to prevent the catastrophe, or even to save themselves. So great was the speed of the train, that the engine actually leaped across the swollen river, and buried itself in the opposite bank. The freight-cars went down into the bed of the river, followed by the second-class car. The first passenger-car partly telescoped with the rear of the second-class car, and remained partially resting upon the first bank, the remainder of the train being wrecked on dry ground by the concussion.

When I left the scene of the catastrophe, on Saturday night, hundreds still hovered round the spot, and by the dim and indistinct rays of colored lanterns vainly endeavored to penetrate the mystery concealed beneath the water of the little brook. The picture was mournfully sad, and called up impressions that will not be quickly effaced.

At 6 o'clock this morning I left this city by a special wrecking-car sent to clear away the débris of the wrecked train. When we arrived we found about 250 laborers engaged in the work, and about twice that number of spectators, who had come at early morning from all parts of the country round to view the ruins, and, if necessary, to assist in the search instituted for the recovery of other bodies supposed to be hidden in the bottom of the river.

A number of these men had been present during the whole of Saturday night, and they had constructed several rafts out of blocks of wood, which they shoved into the stream. But they were not permitted to remain upon these improvised rafts, and only the regular employes of the road were suffered to fish for human remains.

Standing on the verge of the broken rail, where the bridge had once stood, I could see on each side of the river thousands of pieces of torn garments, which had been caught in the bushes as the torrent rushed by, and it was curious to contemplate how sedulously these were sought after by ladies, who will preserve them as mournful relics of the terrible disaster. The search was continued hour after hour, but no human body was discovered, though momentarily articles of wearing apparel, and articles for domestic use were picked up. Adjacent to the bridge itself, which is only thirty feet wide, a heavy iron rail was picked up. Portions of the timber were found floating all along the banks of the river, but the greater part of the bridge had been carried away down the stream to a distance of a quarter of a mile. The poles of the old bridge remain standing in their proper places, and apparently should be able to resist the pressure that was brought upon them.

There can now be little doubt as to the manner in which the bridge was swept away. From incessant rains the river was greatly swollen on Thursday night, and when Ennis' Dam gave way 100 feet toward the source of the stream, immense blocks of timber from the saw-mill, and débris of all description, floated down toward the bridge, covering the abutments, and making a complete breakwater. The foundations of the structure, which are only six feet below the bed of the river, were undermined by the current, and were finally swept off, leaving nothing behind but the naked iron rail, which was unbroken. When the train came along there was nothing to support its weight, and it plunged into the abyss, a broken, misshapen mass.

The temporary bridge which is now erected was built in four hours after the accident. It is constructed of immense beams of wood laid transversely across the stream, with the usual sleepers, and these are placed upon another pile of blocks and sleepers which form the superstructure. This is claimed to be safe. Mr. D. D. Babcock, the President of the road, and Mr. Mathews, Superintendent, are personally superintending everything, and they assert that whatever may be the ability of the old bridge to resist such a pressure as it was called upon to meet, the one to be erected will be amply sufficient to withstand a greater freshet and a stronger shock than that of Saturday morning.

Since yesterday only one train was prevented from passing over the line, and it is expected that by to-morrow the regular mail-train will run as usual. At 8 o'clock this morning the entire force of railroad employes commenced to remove the engine, which was embedded in the bank, but it was not until 3 o'clock this afternoon that they succeeded in bringing it on the track. It weighed thirty-one tons, but the difficulty of removing it was, of course, increased by its injured condition. It was brought into this city at 8½ o'clock this evening, and the repairs upon it will be executed this week.

Mr. Gardiner, the conductor, stated, yesterday, that it was exceedingly fortunate the bridge was so narrow, else the destruction of human life would be much greater. It is also a matter of congratulation that the mail-train, containing hundreds of souls calmly sleeping in their berths, which was due before the ill-fated train, was half a minute late. A delay of ten minutes then occurred, to give the other a start, and that delay was the safety of the mail-train.

In the present condition of the affair, the people of Providence appear to be greatly divided as to what opinion they will ultimately arrive at in relation to the disaster, but in one respect they all appear to be of the same mind, and that is that the case is one which demands a thorough investigation. Such commissions are known in Providence, as well as in New-York, simply as instruments, in the generality of cases, to whitewash the corporations, and declare them totally blameless; but in this instance, unless I greatly mistake the character and force of the popular feeling, strenuous measures will be adopted to render an investigation as thorough as possible. And if the company is found to any extent culpable, it will be made to bear the responsibility. In the different hotels and places of public resort in this city during the day the Richmond switch calamity was the sole subject of conversation. The railroad company has evidently influential and powerful friends in Providence, who loudly assert that the accident was one of those unforeseen and unavoidable circumstances which no amount of forethought could avert, and they confidently point to the history of the road for the past ten years as an evidence of the completeness of the management, and their precautions against accidents. It is true that in ten years nothing like the present unhappy accident has occurred on this line. But while admitting that fact, a very large element of the population claim that it is no evidence of the safety of the line, and some ugly whispers are circulated which do not especially harmonize with the statements of the company.

There is no train running from Providence to Richmond on Sundays, consequently there were no visitors to the scene, but during the whole day large crowds hung around the depot eagerly canvassing the cause of the disaster, and the probability of the recovery of more bodies. I have already intimated that there is a pretty strong feeling adverse to the company. Whether it is justifiable or not I do not, in the face of the pendency of an investigation, presume to say. I merely record the fact as coming within my own personal knowledge, leaving your readers to draw their own deductions.

With the unhappy victims and their families the liveliest feeling of sympathy is expressed.

William Zulle, the engineer, and George Eldred, the fireman, who perished at their posts, are natives of this city, and leave helpless families to deplore their untimely deaths. Mr. Allen was also a native of this city and his death has cast a gloom over a large circle of friends. The charred and blackened remains of these men are now awaiting the funeral ceremonies, which will take place to-morrow. They were placed in shell coffins, and the hundreds of morbid curiosity seekers who called to gratify their instincts were very properly refused permission to see them. That permission was only accorded to their friends, who are now plunged in the direst sorrow. The funeral cortége will not be simply the attendance of friends to pay the last tribute of respect, but a demonstration of a very imposing and significant nature.

A subscription fund for the families of the deceased was to-day inaugurated, and it is certain that the innocent sufferers will not be dependant upon the bounty of the corporation. In the churches of Providence to-day special prayers were read for the sufferers, and the disaster itself was slightly adverted to, but nothing was said derogatory to the line or its directors. Before I close the subject, it may be proper to mention that the railroad authorities are at work, tooth and nail, to smooth over this affair, and it will not be their fault if in two or three days the Richmond Switch calamity is heard of for the last time.

Rhode Island Hospital, where the injured survivors of the disaster are under treatment, was also a centre of interest to many, but no one was permitted inside the gates without special authority from the resident physician. The patients are almost entirely Irish emigrants, of the poorer class, who have just landed in this country, and were on their way to meet their friends in Boston. Their condition has met with the warmest sympathy, and numerous offers of relief in the shape of money, clothes, and other comforts have been made by the inhabitants.

I visited the hospital to-day, and was shown through the various wards by Mr. Nason, the courteous superintendent. The appearance of the institution is perfect in every detail, and all that skill and care can devise is being done to alleviate the distresses of the sufferers.

The medical attendants are Drs. Caswell and Harding, the former gentleman being the first physician who was present at the scene of the disaster.

The names of the patients are as follows:

Mary Bohan, fractured leg and right rib.

Honora Bohan, her daughter, fracture of the skull.

Patrick Williams, cut and bruised in the face and head.

Frank Johnson, slight flesh wound.

Dennis Heffernan, fracture of the collar-bone.

Patrick Burns, fracture of the right leg.

James Donovan, ankle burned and bruised.

Henry Stearns, back and leg bruised.

Thomas Nolan, fracture of the thigh.

I conversed with all the patients, and found them extremely thankful for the kind treatment they were receiving. Some of them were suffering intensely, and were loud in denunciation of the Company, but I am not much disposed to credit their statements, given in evident ignorance of the facts, and suffering under high mental excitement and physical tortures.

The doctors state that all the patients will be discharged to-morrow, with the exception of those who have fractured limbs, and they will be conveyed to their destinations by the company. Those who are to be retained in the hospital will probably not remain over three to six weeks. They do not apprehend that any of the cases will prove fatal, so that it is possible there will be no further victims of the Richmond switch disaster. All rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, only seven bodies have been recovered from the wreck. Their names are Guile, the engineer; Eldred, the fireman, and Mr. Allen, all of Providence; Jerry Creamer, of Boston; and in the pocket of another body was found a card bearing the name M. Fleming; also, a paper showing that he belonged to St. Mary's Star of the Sea T. A. B. of Boston. One leg and one arm were burned off. None of the authorities here know anything of John Callahan, of New-York, who, it was stated, was identified among the dead.

West Coast of Africa—Shocking Barbarity at Bonny.

The British and African Steam Navigation Company's steam-ship Senegal, Commander John Griffiths, had arrived in the Mersey, with the mails, specie, and passengers, from the West Coast of Africa, Grand Canary, Teneriffe, and Madeira. The dates she brought are as follows: Old Calabar and Fernando Po, 26th February; Bonny, 3d March; Benin and Palma, 4th; Lagos, 5th; Quitta, 6th; Accra, 7th; Cape Coast Castle and Elmina, 8th; Axim, 9th; Half-Jack, 10th; Cape Palmas, 11th; Monrovia, 12th; Sierra Leone, 14th; Bathurst, 17th; Grand Canary, 22d; Teneriffe, 22d, and Madeira, 24th. There was comparatively little doing at Old Calabar, the oil season not having commenced. At Bonny, trade had not properly opened, but there was a certain amount of briskness apparent, which augurs well for the approaching opening of the oil markets, so long closed against this river. The first oil is expected down from Eboe, under this new treaty, about the middle of April. In reference to the late treaty ratified between Bonny and Opobo, a curious though barbarous custom was observed on the 1st March. It appears King Ja-ja, of Opobo, sent up to Bonny a slave to be killed, as a binding and everlasting ratification of the treaty lately entered into between himself and the Bonny people. This custom is called "chopping Ju-ju," and is most horribly cruel and revolting. The poor victim is first marked in a straight line from the crown of the head down the front of the body with a sharp knife, cutting deep into the flesh; he is then held by two or three stout fellows and chopped in two halves; his entrails are scattered about, and Ja-ja's Ju-ju man, taking one half of the body, throws it into the ebbing tide, the Bonny Ju-ju man taking the other half and doing the same. King George of Bonny endeavored to prevent this sacrifice of human life, and offered cows or goats instead, but gross superstition still reigns paramount in this vast country. As an instance of the fearfully ignorant state of the natives on this part of the coast, notwithstanding the number of excellent missionary establishments there, this poor man before being sacrificed was walking about Bonny for three four days, quite indifferent as to his fate, though he knew it, blindly solacing himself with the idea that when he met those again who were going to kill him now he would do the same to them.

THE FALLEN CITY.

Story of the Destruction of San Salvador—Ruin of a Population of Forty Thousand Souls.

The Pacific Mail steam-ship Honduras, which arrived at Aspinwall on the morning of April 4, brought details of the earthquake by which the City of San Salvador, in Central America, was wholly destroyed. We reprint the correspondence of the Panama Star and Herald, which runs thus: The intelligence received by previous mails from the North is not only confirmed but brought to a climax with the entire destruction of the capital of Salvador and the ruin of a population of 40,000 people.

THE SCHOCKS.

The first really violent shock commenced on the 4th of March, at about 5 P. M., destroying many houses, although actually throwing down but few. The quaking continued, at frequent intervals, until the morning of the 19th, when, at 2 o'clock, two light shocks, succeeded by a stronger one, destroyed the entire city. Sopopango, Ilopango, San Thomas, and Santa Tecla have all suffered to a lesser extent, as well as every suburb within a radius of twenty miles. Fortunately, owing to the alarm of the 4th inst., such residents as had not left the city were living in the patios or in the public plazas; hence the loss of life, although great, is much diminished. The only buildings left standing, although in a ruined condition, are the Hotel del Parque, the Government Palace, the only two-story buildings in town; also a large wooden building, the Colejio Tridentino, a clerical institute, and now constituted into the seat of the central government offices. Added to other horrors, a fire broke out in the large drug-store of Belisario Navarro, which was occasioned by the explosion of acids, but which, owing to the efforts of the authorities, was finally subdued.

DAMAGE AND LOSSES.

Among the heavy foreign sufferers are reported to be Messrs. Moses Levy & Co., London; Kattengell & Campbell, London; G. B. Kerford & Co., Liverpool, and among the resident merchants are Kerford & Keogh, Messrs. Carazzo and Duke, Dorantes & Ojeda, Blanco & Trigueros. J. M. Peralta, Emeterio Ruano, José Rosales. In fact all and every one has suffered to a greater or lesser degree. We have, added to what is already depicted, the anticipation of an epidemic following close upon the present ruin. All the sewage is stopped, the water viaduct is broken, and the ruins are known to cover many human beings and animals, whose presence is exceedingly remarkable to the least sensible olfactory organs. The fine brick bridge over the river on the road to Sopopango is down, and traffic is stopped. The Guaramal road to the towns of Sonsonate and Santa Ana is damaged—large boulders, some of 100 tons weight, having fallen and rendered transit very difficult and dangerous. The shocks still continue. More than forty bodies buried in the niches of the Pantheon were discovered partially or wholly exposed, and being left some days without reinterment were finally burned.

GOVERNMENT ACTION.

The action of the Government has been very firm and praiseworthy. The President, after having sent his family to Santa Tecla, established himself in the plaza, in a tent, and has been constant and successful in maintaining order. Robberies have been trifling; by Government decree all are authorised to shoot any persons found with property of which they can give no satisfactory account. The authorities are persistent in their intention to rebuild the city on the same spot, although this is the eighth time within 150 years that the town has been entirely destroyed; and it has been partially ruined every ninth year. A decree dated the 21st inst., has been emitted, signed by the President and Cabinet, ordering the functionaries to carry out the project. The opposition on the part of the population, although quiet, is very strong, and every one is moving, with such property as has been saved, to Santa Tecla, distant three leagues, which, from an insignificant town of 1,500 people, now contains fifteen thousand. As an inducement a permit has been given in Salvador to allow squatting in any part of the city, and such little lumber as is procurable has been employed in building sheds in the park, plazas, and any other vacant space; many persons are living huddled together in such primitive apologies for tents as could be rigged up at the moment.

ORIGIN OF THE EARTHQUAKE.

Labor has become very scarce, and most of the fine neighboring sugar estates, including the valuable estate of Francis Bogan at Monti Cristi, are wrecked. His loss is estimated at $30,000. Fortunately the populace, although much depressed, is not disheartened, and as the coffee crop is all in, and the large towns like Sonsonate and Santa Ana are intact, it is to be hoped that ere long the pristine prosperity of the country will be restored. The earthquake is presumed to have emanated from the suppressed volcano of St. Thomas, one of the seven volcanoes within a radius of thirty miles. Ysalco is in full blast, at times throwing out a constant stream of lava, visible at night along the whole Costa del Bálsamo.

After the Calamity.

"W. R. R." writes as follows to the Star and Herald: On the 20th of March, 1873, Her Majesty's ship Reindeer was lying at La Union, with steam up, on the point of starting for Panama, when the Commandante of the port came on board and informed me that he had received a telegram to say that the City of San Salvador, the capital of that State, had been completely destroyed by an earthquake, on the night of the 18th inst. On the news being confirmed by a subsequent telegram from San Miguel, I started for La Libertad on board the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company's steamer Winchester, Capt. Searle, and arrived at that port on the following morning. The Captain of the port kindly procured a coach, and, in company with Dr. Smyth and Mr. Davey, of this ship, I started for the capital. We only reached a village about half way that night, owing to the bad state of the roads and the distance being entirely up hill. Here, however, we met with comfortable quarters, and obtained supper and beds. Some refugees flying from San Salvador to the coast most magnanimously insisted on our occupying the beds while they slept out in the open air. The reason for this disinterested kindness being, as we found out in the morning, that they expected the house to fall down during the night. Next day, after a cup of coffee, we started again in our coach at 6 A. M., and reached Santa Tecla, a town three leagues from San Salvador, about 8 o'clock. On approaching the town a native on the box, whom we had allowed to take a passage with us, displayed a black flag, which was speedily torn down and thrown out of the window.

THE SUBURBS.

Santa Tecla showed signs of having been severely shaken. Many houses were cracked, but none thrown down. The town and all the roads leading to it were crowded with poor people leaving San Salvador and carrying their worldly goods with them. Driving through the town we pushed on for San Salvador, partaking in the coach of a hearty breakfast which Capt. Searle, of the Winchester, had most thoughtfully prepared for us. As we approached the town the signs of destruction became apparent. An aqueduct which spans the road, and from which the city was mainly supplied, lay broken down, its massive arches blocking the road, and the remnants threatening to fall at any moment. The bullock-drivers were doing a splendid business, the whole route being thronged with their wagons going to and fro. On arriving at the suburbs of the unfortunate city, our driver, an impudent vagabond, stopped, and refused to go any further. We persuaded him, however, to drive to the plaza, where we found the President, and most of the inhabitants that remained, encamped. The English Vice-Consul could not be found immediately, so we waited on His Excellency the President, and made known the object of our mission, placing our services at his disposal, and assuring him of the sympathy of Her Britannic Majesty's Government. We soon afterward found Mr. Blair, acting Vice-Consul, who in company with some other English gentlemen, was working hard to save what he could from the ruins of the British Consulate.

THE TOWN.

In company with one of these gentlemen, Mr. Moffat, I made an inspection of the city, taking sketches of some most striking ruins. Such a scene of desolation I have never before witnessed, unless it be Arica. The whole town was down, with the exception of one or two wooden houses. All the churches, including the cathedral, were a heap of ruins; the spire of the latter had been arrested in its fall, and remained in a slanting position, like the leaning tower of Pisa, but at a much greater angle. One of the bells must have been swung completely round, as it remained mouth up. The United States Consulate was a mass of ruins inside, though the outer walls were standing. Mr. Biddle, the Resident Minister for the United States, with his five little children, had a very narrow escape. The Palace, being built of wood, remained standing except where stone had been used, in which places the sides had fallen, leaving great gaps in the building. There was not one single house left in a habitable condition; the stronger the walls, the greater was the ruin, and the streets were one mass of débris. Mr. Blair and his friends were living in the patio under a rude sort of tent, surrounded by the ruins of the consulate. They were all wonderfully cheery under the circumstances, and as kind and hospitable as if nothing had happened. Mrs. Keogh's escape was miraculous; the room in which she was sleeping was completely wrecked, and she must have been killed but for some beams which prevented the walls from crushing her. Accounts differ as to the number of lives lost—some say as many as fifty killed and 500 wounded; others not so much; but all agree that the number is wonfully small considering the damage done. Indeed, looking at the ruins it seems extraordinary how any escaped, especially as the catastrophe happened in the night. Most providentially the final shock, which brought down the town, was preceded by two others of sufficient force to awaken and alarm the inhabitants, who had time to rush out, and so save their lives.

MARTIAL LAW.

The President behaved most nobly, and by his admirable regulations and the discipline which he enforced, prevented any riots or robberies. The city was placed under martial law; citizens were authorized to shoot any one interfering with their property, and sentries were posted at the corners of the streets, with orders to fire at any one lurking about after dark. Judging by the way the rifle-balls were flying about during the night, they must have kept a sharp look-out. Mr. Taylor, an American gentleman, who has been superintending the laying down of telegraphs in the country, extended his hospitality to all; indeed I do not know what we should have done without his assistance. He contrived to have a good breakfast and dinner prepared for all who chose to avail themselves of it, although his house was ruined like the rest. During our stay in the city—some forty-eight hours—we experienced seven or eight shocks of earthquake of more or less violence. No further damage was done by them, simply because nothing more could be done, unless the earth opened and swallowed up the ruins. In some places it already opened, some of the cracks being upward of a foot wide and of considerable depth. Mr. Biddle, who had taken his family out to a hacienda some three or four leagues off, rode in to see us. We went together over the ruins of his house—a most melancholy sight. Many horses and mules were killed by the falling walls, and those that remained seemed to have their nerves quite shattered. Mr. Blair told me that one of his mules, a valuable animal, was now quite worthless from the fright she had received; she would stop and tremble at the slightest sound. Birds also seemed in an excited state; at every shock all the cocks began to crow, and pigeons left their resting-places and wheeled wildly in the air.

A PHŒNIX CITY.

The President issued a decree the day following the disaster, saying that the town would be rebuilt on its old site. One cannot help admiring the pluck of the gallant old man, but it is nothing more nor less than tempting Providence to do such a thing. The city has been completely destroyed already six or seven times, at intervals of about twenty years; the last time was in 1854. The ground on which it is built is a mere shell. By placing one's ear to the earth running water may be distinctly heard, and if struck by any heavy object a hollow sound is produced. The Indians would never build on that site, and it is sheer folly to do so now. Before we left San Salvador carpenters were hard at work, erecting temporary wooden houses in the plaza, and a military band played there in the evenings. The sick and wounded having been already removed to Santa Tecla and other places, the services of Dr. Smyth were happily not required, so he and Mr. Davey returned to Libertad by coach, and Mr. Blair accompanied me on horseback.

LOUISIANA.

Peace Being Restored in the Parishes—Increased Financial Resources of the State.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEW-ORLEANS, April 20.—Everything continues quiet in Grant and Rapides Parishes, the recent massacre having evidently startled the people. We hear of slight disturbances, however, in four or five remote white parishes, though nothing definite has been ascertained as to their extent. We hope to hear in a few days that some of the miscreants who committed the butchery at Colfax Court-house have been arrested. But I am afraid that, in the present unsettled state of affairs in this State, the efforts of the authorities will prove unsuccessful. An example is, however, needed, else the people will despair of seeing life or property protected or rendered safe.

I desire to correct the statement recently made by some of the Northern journals to the effect that Gov. Kellogg issued commissions to Fusion officers in Grant Parish. The Governor gave no commissions to any one except those first commissioned, and the statement that he did otherwise is a falsehood from beginning to end. It may be well to add here that the State taxes are being rapidly collected. The amount of taxes and licenses collected in this city alone during the first quarter of 1872 was $133,000, while the amount collected during the corresponding quarter of 1873 was $254,000, and it would have been much greater had not the collection of taxes been temporarily suspended during January and February, owing to the political difficulties then occurring.

Troops Sent to Colfax—The Conspirators at Work in Other Parishes.

NEW-ORLEANS, April 20.—Steamer B. L. Hodge sailed last evening with United States troops for Colfax. A special dispatch announces the departure of the Kellogg officials from St. Mary's Parish. The impression is gaining ground that the presence of United States troops will be required in every parish in the State to enforce obedience to the Kellogg Government. A special dispatch announces that a large and enthusiastic meeting of property-holders of Ouachita and adjoining parishes, was held at Monroe, yesterday, which was addressed by McEnery. The meeting resolved to pay no taxes to the Kellogg Government.

Railroad Companies and Public Rights—Decision in Illinois.

From the Chicago Tribune, April 15.

The Supreme Court of Illinois has just rendered a decision which is of importance to the public, as confirming the principle that railroad corporations may not make contracts between themselves that are detrimental to the public interests, and that contracts which impair their duties as common carriers are void as to the public, even though they may be enforced as between the two contracting parties.

The case was as follows: The Peoria and Rock Island Railroad Company, and the Coal Valley Mining Company, which also owned a railroad between Rock Island and Coal Valley, consolidated under the authority given by an act of the General Assembly. Among the conditions of this consolidation was one that the Peoria and Rock Island Company should pay the Coal Valley Mining Company fifty cents per ton on all the coal transported over the Coal Valley Mining Company's track, except that which the Peoria and Rock Island Company transported for its own use. The Peoria and Rock Island Company having failed to comply with the terms of the contract in this respect, the Coal Valley Mining Company sued for an injunction restraining the Peoria and Rock Island Road from carrying coal over that portion of the track lying between Coal Valley and Rock Island. The injunction was granted. The Peoria and Rock Island Company took an appeal to the Supreme Court, which has reversed the decision of the court below and dissolved the injunction. Under the ruling of the Supreme Court, the railroad track must be open to the public for the transportation of coal, whether the Peoria and Rock Island Company pays the Coal Valley Mining Company according to contract or not. If the Peoria and Rock Island Company fails to pay the Coal Valley Mining Company fifty cents a ton, according to the terms of the consolidation, then the Coal Valley Mining Company may sue for damages; but it is not entitled to an injunction restraining the railroad company from carrying coal over any part of its road.

THE INDIAN QUESTION.

A Grand Kiowa, Appapahoe and Comanche Council—Major Powell's Expedition—Latest from the Lava Beds.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Aside from the sanguinary phase of Indian affairs in the Modoc country, there is now going on an important movement in another quarter, which, though not warlike, will soon attract much attention, because of the character of the operations involved. For six or eight months past the Indian Office has been engaged in an earnest effort to get the Kiowas, Arpapahoes, and Comanches on a basis of permanent peace. To this end a promise was made that if these tribes would deliver up all the captives and stock they had taken during the past few years and remain at permanent peace on their reservation, of which Fort Sill is the military head-quarters, the government would use its influence with the civil authorities of Texas for the release of Satanta and Big Tree, the Kiowa chiefs now under sentence of imprisonment for life for murders committed in that State, and also for the release of a large number of Indians now held as prisoners of war. The Indians have faithfully carried out their promises. Agent Tatum writes that in pursuance of this arrangement on their part he has received from them 164 head of horses and mules and eighteen captives. Seven of the captives were white, and eleven were Mexicans. All of the white children and several of the Mexicans were captured in Texas, and the balance in Mexico. The captives have been with the Indians from two months to eight or nine years. No ransom has been paid either for captives or animals. The prominent cause, however, of the delivery of both animals and children, has been the hope and promise of having the large number of Indian prisoners, who are now held in Texas, returned to them. The Indians furthermore were assembled by their chief men at Fort Sill, and signed among themselves articles of peace. It is now proposed to assemble at Fort Sill, on the 20th of May next, a grand council, at which time the Indian prisoners shall be delivered up, and absolute submission exacted in return. Some months ago, the Secretary of the Interior, with the sanction of the President, requested Gov. Davis, of Texas, to release Satanta and Big Tree, for the purpose of carrying out this programme. Gov. Davis consented to do so, but on the 14th inst., upon the result of the Modoc treachery, and the excitement consequent thereupon, the Secretary telegraphed to Gov. Davis to delay the release of the prisoners for the present. Coincidently Gov. Davis telegraphed to Superintendent Hoag as follows:

AUSTIN, April 14, 1873.

Would prefer to delay release of Indians till 20th May, when Legislature will have adjourned and I can visit Fort Sill myself.

EDWARD J. DAVIS, Governor.

This council will be very important in its bearings upon the future peace in that quarter. It is also proposed, if it seem expedient at that time, to bring to the East and to Washington a delegation of the leading men of these tribes. The experiment of giving these wild men new light as to the power of the Government, and the uselessness of resistance by bringing them into actual contact with such power, has never yet failed to produce good results.

Commissioner Smith, of the Indian office, has gone to New-York to be present at the opening of bids for the Indian supplies, which take place on Tuesday.

MAJOR POWELL AND THE UTAH INDIANS.

The Powell expedition will leave Salt Lake City about May 1 to complete the work of last season. Major Powell has received a special commission, which will enable him to devote much of his time this season to work among the Indians of Utah, and he will co-operate with the agent for Utah, G. W. Ingalls, in an attempt to secure the settlement of several tribes on new reservations, especial attention being given to a new location for the Shoshones. He will be able while executing this commission to collect much matter for his new work on Indian languages and affairs. Mr. James Stevenson, Dr. Haydon's assistant, and Mr. W. H. Jackson, photographer to the expedition, left here to-night for the West. Mr. Stevenson will proceed at once to Denver and attend to the collection of stores and articles needed by the expedition while in the field. Mr. Jackson will reach there a little later, and will spend a short time before the arrival of the main party in making some photographs in the vicinity of the South Park in such places as are accessible in the early part of the season.

THE LAVA BED WAR.

The Modocs Still in the Lava Beds.

YREKA, April 20.—Frank Merritt has just arrived from the front, having left there at 2 P. M., Friday, and reports that Indians are still in the lava bed some Modocs having been seen where young Hovey was shot, evidently keeping open communication with the lake, for the purpose of procuring water. A number of shots were fired along the line just before he left. Some troops remained in the lava bed. Col. Perry, with 100 men, left at 6 A. M. the day Merritt left, for the south side of the lava bed, to cut the Indians off from the springs.

The Indian found in Captain Jack's cave was Scar-faced Charley without doubt, from the description given. He was dead, instead of wounded, as before reported.

Eugene Hovey's body was buried near camp on Friday. It was so horribly mutilated as to be scarcely recognizable.

VOLUNTEERS ORGANIZING.

From a note from Hon. J. K. Luttrell, who started out yesterday morning with a company of volunteers from this place, it is learned that they organized, yesterday noon, at the foot of Goose-nest Mountain, by selecting J. C. Burgess Captain; J. G. Halleck, First Lieutenant, and A. Noble, Second Lieutenant. The company numbers twenty men, well armed and mounted. They arrived at Balt's last night, and would leave for the lava beds at 2 o'clock this morning, escorting the regular courier to headquarters.

Merritt says the horse disease had not reached the front, but had appeared at Balt's place.

No News in Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—No telegrams concerning operations against the Modocs have been received by the military authorities up to 10 o'clock to-night.

Uneasiness of the Settlers Over the Apprehended Escape of the Modocs.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Up to the present time no courier has arrived at Yreka. James Wheeler arrived from "Balts" to-night and reports considerable uneasiness is felt among the settlers regarding the escape of the Modocs from the lava beds, fearing that they may raid over into Shasta Valley.

Mrs. Meacham, wife of the Commissioner, who started for the front yesterday, was not permitted to go further than Balts, as it was considered unsafe for a lady to proceed. She then went to Linkville. Mr. Meacham's condition was favorable at last accounts.

Nearly all the horses at Balts were down with the horse disease, which is spreading toward the lava bed. From the fact that so many horses are sick, it may become difficult to furnish them to couriers, and communication with the front rendered less frequent and slower.

SALT LAKE, April 20.—Great feeling is exhibited here in favor of a stern and vigorous Indian policy all over the country.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRES.

Large Proportion of the Business Houses in Canastota, N. Y., Burned—Loss, $85,000.

Fire in the Telegraph Office in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 20.—About 12 o'clock last night, a fire broke out in the battery-room of the Western Union Telegraph office, and soon after its discovery an explosion occurred, which was supposed to be one of the carboys of acid. The firemen found it extremely difficult to extinguish the flames, on account of the acid. They succeeded, however, in confining the fire to the room in which it originated. The operating-room and the office of the New-York Associated Press, on the next floor below, were deluged with water. The damage done has been repaired, and business will not be interrupted.

Tennyson's Views Concerning Canada.

The following letter, recently written by Mr. Alfred Tennyson, the poet, to Mr. William Kirby, is published in the Toronto Globe:

FARRINGTON, FRESHWATER,
ISLE OF WIGHT, March 18, 1873.

DEAR SIR: I have read your true-hearted letter with deep interest. It entirely corresponds with what I had imagined was the feeling of Canada; and rest assured that you are right in what you believe to be the feeling of England concerning Canada. For myself, I hope that I may live to see England and her colonies absolutely one, with as complete a reciprocity of the free gifts of God as there is between one county and another in the mother country. I would not wish anything better for my sons, nor would they for themselves, than that they should devote their lives toward helping to effect this "seamless union." If my voice can indeed be heard in Canada, let me entreat, with all the earnestness of which I am capable, that she will turn a deaf ear to any who may hold a less loyal language; for it is not England who speaks through any such, but rather through men, for instance, like Cyril Graham, whose article in our last Fraser you have doubtless read and considered.

Thanking you sincerely for what you so kindly say of myself, I am, in all truth, your brother Briton,

A. TENNYSON.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The Dutch in Sumatra Driven to Stockades on the Beach—Overwhelming Force of the Enemy.

LONDON, April 20.—A dispatch from Penang, Straits of Malacca, dated to-day, says: The latest news from Sumatra is that the Dutch forces have retreated to the sea-beach, behind stockades. It is doubtful whether they can hold their position there long, as they are vastly outnumbered by the Atchinese, whose forces are constantly increasing. The losses of the Dutch in killed and wounded, since the beginning of the rebellion, are estimated at 600; those of the Atchinese are unknown, but must be very heavy.

WEST INDIES.

Seizure of a Vessel with Arms—Sugar Culture in Barbadoes—Wreck of a Philadelphia Brig.

JAMAICA, April 10.—The Governor has been advised to appoint a court of inquiry into the loss of the British bark Bina, of Glasgow, on the 15th March last, off Plum Point Light-house, the Court consisting of Judge Drake and Lieuts. Boxer and Barbour, of Her Majesty's ship Aboukir. After examining the crew, the light-house keepers, and a pilot, they reported that the loss of the vessel was caused by the Captain's negligence, and they have recommended that his license should be taken from him.

A British schooner called the Village Bride, belonging to the port of Kingston, Jamaica, asked permission on the 29th March to put into Port Antonio for food and water, but having arms and ammunition on board, with some Cubans, she was immediately seized by the custom-house authorities and so remains. It is said she is owned by the Peruvian Consul in this island, and that she reports to him as consul. A Spanish steamer of war is here looking after the law of the case.

BARBADOS.

The making of sugar is general; the young crop for next year is fully established, and looks well. The estimate for this year is 40,000 hogsheads, which will be equal to last year, but still 5,000 short of the average. Several steam-mills are in course of erection, and if the equalization of duties on sugar was granted, then numerous central factories would be started. The small cultivators grind with wind-mills, and there are not more than ten steam-mills altogether on the island owned by small cultivators. Native labor is abundant, at from twenty-four to thirty-six cents per day. The sale of property in Barbados is very rare, for no sooner is a place known to be in the market than it is instantly bought up at a fabulous price.

The American brig Frank E. Allen, from Philadelphia in twelve days, for Trinidad, struck on Cobler's Reef, off this island, on the 24th March, and has since broken up. Only $4,000 worth of the cargo was saved. The cook and a seaman were drowned in an attempt to swim ashore. A light-house is to be erected in the vicinity of this reef. It is to be 192 feet high, and will be commenced in a few months.

*Deficiency.

The Banks are generally getting into line after a strain of unparalleled severity since the first or middle of March. And although the present gain in the reserve of Greenbacks and Gold Notes is not so decided as the reported receipts of Currency from the country promised, we believe it safe to assume that the Greenback average, at the close of the week, was a rising one, and the gain in Gold Notes from the Treasury this week is expected to be quite considerable, should the prepayment of May Interest without rebate be announced in a day or two. About half a million Coupons from Europe were prepaid, under discount, last week.

It was not until the very close of the week that Money, on the Stock Exchange, fell to 7 ℘ cent. Currency Interest. On Tuesday and Wednesday the extra rates per day were so intolerable as to force the failure of one or two Stock Exchange houses of prominence, and to force also numerous liquidations of Stocks for some time held at high figures and on very dear Money, through the only available process, at the moment, of peremptory sales at a heavy sacrifice. It was by no means surprising, under the circumstances preceding and immediately attending these involuntary liquidations, that the decline in prices should assume the form of panic. Fortunately, however, the storm was of short duration. Its very violence soon cleared the atmosphere of speculation of its excesses, and the reaction in values proved as rapid as the previous decline.

The general trade of the City had begun to be seriously affected by the extraordinary rates for Money on the Stock Exchange, but the mischief had not gone so far as to arrest the negotiation of prime mercantile paper, although it had interfered with the free sales of merchandise on credits. There is now a sense of relief that the downfall of the Share speculation, and the return through liquidation, and the remittances of Currency from the interior, have restored the price of Money to something like rational figures.

The current Gold speculation is an affair aside from the contest between the Bulls in Stocks and the Bulls in Money on the Stock Exchange. But it is really quite as unreasoning. The price of Gold has been forced by this movement in the last fortnight up to 118⅞@119@117@118 ℘ cent., against an Exchange on London 2½@3 ℘ cent. below the par of Gold, and while the Customs demand for Gold has barely equaled the sales of Gold from the Treasury and the payments of Gold Interest. The market on Saturday closed 117⅞@118 ℘ cent., and Bills on London advanced to 108 ℘ cent. The Imports of the week were large, and so were the Exports. The latter, made upon Cotton from the Southern ports, were about $7,750,000, and from New-York $5,400,000 in Domestic Produce and $842,000 in Silver Bullion.

The Import Entries in New-York, embracing Foreign Dry Goods and General Merchandise, for the past week were $12,346,618, against $13,104,110 for the corresponding week last year. The Exports of Domestic Produce, other than Gold and Silver, were $5,421,753, against $3,820,952 same week in 1872. The Export of Gold and Silver, $842,603, against $899,592 same week in 1872. The Customs, in Gold, paid into the New-York Office of the United States Treasury for the week were $2,307,931.

The Gold values of the Import Entries of Foreign Merchandise at New-York, exclusive of Foreign Specie, since July 1, 1872, are as follows, the figures being official to March 1, and since semi-official from the Custom-house:

July	$36,024,881	March 8	$9,404,893
August	42,892,122	March 15	5,974,593
September	34,290,330	March 22	10,997,728
October	30,683,752	March 29	13,884,598
November	23,650,040	April 5	7,576,073
December	26,925,208	April 12	6,251,358
January	37,289,752	April 19	12,346,613
February	38,726,564
Total since July 1, 1872			$337,661,592
Same time previous year			321,872,845
Increase since July 1			$15,488,747

The Currency value of exports of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods, including Foreign Goods re-exported from New-York since July, is as follows:

July	$20,660,088	March 5	$5,252,908
August	19,464,143	March 12	5,398,314
September	19,684,793	March 19	4,068,273

The extreme decline, about the middle of the week on the Share list was from 5 to 8 ℘ cent. The Stocks in which the suspended firms were immediately interested suffered most, such as Union Pacific and Western Telegraph. In the last-named Stock there were other heavy settlements at and below 80 ℘ cent., implying, of course, a redistribution of the Stock to strong hands, and we have reason to suppose that heavy Money loans, or loans of Exchange on London, were made for the purpose of taking care of this Stock, and perhaps of New-York Central and Harlem. Other important Money arrangements and Stock Combinations in the Bull interest were entered upon near the close of the week, and the impression appeared to be general on the Street on Saturday that the strong men of the Exchange were mostly in harmony for a fresh upward movement—including the Vanderbilt, Gould, and Tracy interests, some of whom were strongly suspected of complicity in the recent manipulations of Money to break down the market.

☞ THE SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS of the CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, being secured by a First Mortgage on a COMPLETED road—which is one of the GREAT EAST AND WEST TRUNK LINES, commanding a large through business, and which, from the immense Mineral, Agricultural, and other valuable resources of the country it traverses, is assured of a very remunerative local traffic—are among the most substantial and satisfactory investment securities in the market; and, at the present price—87½ and accrued interest—yield a liberal rate of interest on their cost.

They are in denominations of $100, $500, and $1,000; coupon and registered; principal and interest payable in gold coin in New-York; interest May and November.

INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON & WESTERN Railway

7 PER CENT. CONVERTIBLE GOLD BONDS,

SECURED BY A

1st Mortgage on its Extension.

The line of this Road, including the Extension, is 420 miles, and IS COMPLETED, except the short distance of eighty-five miles between Havana, on the Illinois River, and the Mississippi.

A part of the line, (202½ miles,) from Indianapolis to Pekin, has been in successful operation over two years, and is recognized as one of the most important roads coming into the City of Indianapolis. Its net earnings are more than sufficient to pay interest on ALL Bonds issued by the Company, and its receipts for 1872 were more than $[illegible] greater than in the previous year.

These Bonds possess unusual strength, and we recommend them for the following reasons:

1. The Road is already earning more than operating expenses and interest.

2. The unfinished portion of the line will be completed within a few months, and the entire road has an immense business immediately tributary to it. EARNINGS FOR LAST THREE MONTHS OF 1872 WERE AT THE RATE OF $[illegible] PER MILE per annum, and must reach $[illegible] per mile within two years, and continue progressive.

3. The effect of such revenue upon the market value of the capital stock of the Road, as well as upon its convertible bonds, is obvious.

4. The SECURITY IS COMPLETE.

5. The management of the Road is acknowledged to be SUPERIOR, and there can be no possibility of any default in interest-payments.

The Bonds are SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD, $[illegible] each, convertible at option of the holder, and may be registered without charge. Price 90 and accrued interest in currency. Coupons, January and July 1, free of tax.

If any efforts are made to form combinations in the Board of Aldermen against any possible or probable nominations by the Mayor, they will not be creditable. It must be assumed, until the contrary is shown, that the Mayor will properly use the great powers conferred upon him by the new charter, and each of his nominations should be judged upon its own merits. In this way we [illegible] reasonably certain of securing good officials, and the public have little further interest in the matter. There is no anxiety that any particular clique of politicians [illegible] power, but [illegible] there is a general desire that the City shall have honest and capable servants. To this duty the Mayor and Aldermen are expected to devote themselves, and in proportion as they discharge it acceptably will be the commendation they will receive.

It will be seen by our special dispatch from New-Orleans that the people of that city, being left to themselves, find no hardship in submitting to the Kellogg Government. Taxes to the amount of $254,000 have been collected during the first quarter of this year, against only $183,000 collected during the same period last year, which could not have been the case had not the Government been efficient, and the people generally well-disposed. This single fact is a sufficient answer to the charge that the people, under no circumstances, would submit to the rule of GOV. KELLOGG.

Details of the destruction of San Salvador on the 19th of March by an earthquake have been received by the last arrival from Panama, and they show that the first account of the disaster was not an exaggeration. The unfortunate city has been wholly ruined, as not more than three buildings, and those of wood, remained standing. With this wholesale destruction of property there was, fortunately, but comparatively little loss of life, as the wildest rumors placed the killed at not more than fifty. Some steps were immediately taken for the rebuilding of the city, but there will probably be some difficulty in persuading the inhabitants to remain. Many were settling at Santa Tecla, three leagues distant, and many others show a natural repugnance to living on a spot subject to such strong convulsions. The city has been entirely destroyed eight times within 180 years, but has been partially [illegible] every ninth year, and it is no wonder that the inhabitants are beginning to tire of the site. The undismayed President GONZALES, however, issued his decree for the restoration of the city from the midst of the [illegible] and doubtless all the authority of the Government will be exercised to accomplish this result.

With the close of the session only a few days distant, the Legislature has before it a large amount of unfinished business. The pressure of local and special bills is as great as at any previous session. The number of bills of all kinds introduced is 1,942, of which 301 have been passed by the Assembly, and 200 by the Senate. In this mass, hardly more than a tenth part are bills of a general nature; and the fact that this Legislature has been burdened, equally with its predecessors, with local and special bills, is a strong argument why it should take favorable action on the constitutional amendment prohibiting such legislation. This amendment is yet to be acted upon, as are the Appropriation and Supply bills, with other important measures, and it is not probable that the Legislature can give all these the attention they deserve. Whatever else fails, we hope the amendment, which is intended to make such a state of things as now confronts the Legislature impossible, will be acted upon.

No measure now pending before the Legislature, excepting the Police Justices bill, is more essential to the welfare of this City than that introduced by Mr. C. G. CORNELL, and recently passed by the Assembly, which is in the nature of an habitual criminals act. As the law now stands, professional thieves can infest street-cars, theatres, and other places of public assemblage, with entire impunity, as the police can only interfere with them when taking them in the overt act, or by an arrest upon complaint that a particular crime has been committed. Under the law, as this bill will establish it, these marauders can be arrested whenever found in any place where they would be likely to ply their trade, and, being taken before a magistrate, can be committed as vagrants. The law is properly guarded to prevent abuse, and there can be no doubt that its enforcement would result in driving the thieves to a great extent from our public places. As the bill cannot have any other effect than the better protection of honest citizens, we hope the Senate will not allow the session to end without affirmative action upon it.

An Erie Lawyer as a Witness.

If the Erie Investigating Committee do not succeed in discovering the names of the Senators reported to have been bribed by the Erie Company, it will be but poor satisfaction to know that the "investigation" has given men like SHEARMAN and COMER a chance to set going lies about the Attorney-General. The public would rather have the truth about corrupt men than falsehood about men they know to be incorruptible. Doubtless it would be worth a good deal to the enemies of Gen. BARLOW to have an official expression of distrust in that gentleman's fidelity, if in no shape more forcible than a minority report. More than this they could not hope to obtain. But the testimony already in looks as if they were planning for a minority expression reflecting on the Attorney-General.

If any member of the committee contemplates gratifying their desire, it would be well for him to examine the evidence carefully. We have ourselves done so, and it is very plain to us that it proves nothing so strongly as the exceedingly bitter hatred of the Gould-Field-Shearman Ring for Gen. BARLOW, and the utter want of any basis for their insinuations against him. On Saturday, one of the chief manipulators of the old Erie machine was before the committee. This was T. G. SHEARMAN, the partner of FIELD. He was ousted from a very fat berth by the change in the direction, having previously drawn some $17,500 a year for his services as counsel, and having had a partnership interest in from $35,000 to $250,000 additional, drawn by his firm. Mr. SHEARMAN probably knows that, with a corrupt Attorney-General in power, no such calamity could have befallen him as his loss of this income. When we say that he has, in the Albany slang, from 25,000 to 100,000 "reasons" for hating Gen. BARLOW, he will understand what we mean.

This witness acknowledged that "he had only hearsay information of Mr. BARLOW'S connection with the alleged corrupt transaction, and that he had received such information from Mr. GOULD, Mr. FISK, and others." He testified that the "effect on his mind from Mr. GOULD'S conversation was that he was bribing the Attorney-General." As if the reputation of an honest public officer was to be broken down by stories about "the effect" the licentious talk of a scoundrel has on his paid attorney and tool, who at the very moment is engaged in the scheme of alleged bribery. SHEARMAN further swore that he "learned from Mr. SIMON STEVENS that Gen. SICKLES had received a letter from Gen. BARLOW demanding a large sum of money, about $100,000. The statement was really made by DAVID DUDLEY FIELD in the presence of Mr. STEVENS, he (FIELD) saying that Mr. STEVENS had told him, and Mr. STEVENS silently confirming it."

And on this rubbish we are expected to believe that the Attorney-General is no better than SHEARMAN himself, DUDLEY FIELD, or any of the precious crew that is now hounding him. Mr. SHEARMAN "learns from Mr. SIMON STEVENS" what he admits, Mr. SIMON STEVENS never told him. Pushed to the wall on that point, he says that the statement was "really made by DAVID DUDLEY FIELD." It can make little difference whether it was made by Mr. FIELD, or concocted by Mr. SHEARMAN. Neither one even pretends that there is a particle of basis in fact for it.

—After retailing various similar insinuations, SHEARMAN confesses that he has no "knowledge that Attorney-General BARLOW ever received a dollar." Whatever result may come from the committee's inquiries, it is to be hoped that the palpably malicious intent of the old Erie Ring will not be helped by them.

The Louisiana Troubles.

There is a vast deal of the insolence and falsehood of its rebellion record in the treatment of the Louisiana question by the Democratic Press. Throughout the war, and prior to its commencement, we were accustomed to the Democratic plea that everything would be peaceful and altogether lovely, provided Democrats were left unmolested to steal forts and arms, inaugurate revolution, starve prisoners, and massacre negroes. But if the miserable Yankees ventured to interfere in these amusements, the Government which had been outraged and defied ventured to attempt to enforce obedience to law and deference to the popular will, then there would be trouble. We thought the time for this sort of stuff had passed, but the spirit to which it is due is as active and virulent as ever, when we find a Democratic newspaper saying of the Kellogg party in Louisiana that it is a "minority of white and black rascals," who, "flown with insolence and whisky, confident of immunity and help from Washington, have set upon the decent citizens; and in those parishes where rascality is strongest chaos has come again."

Now, what are the facts thus wantonly and impudently perverted. An election was held in Louisiana and the result became a matter of dispute between the two factions in the State. With neither party to this dispute have we had any sympathy, but, on the contrary, have considered it disgraceful to all concerned. A call being made, in accordance with the Constitution, for Executive action, the President decided, and we think rightly, that the Kellogg government must be upheld. No doubt Gen. GRANT felt like invoking a plague on both their houses, and would gladly have remanded the whole question back to the people for another decision. But he was powerless to do this; he was compelled to act upon the facts as he found them.

What was the obvious duty of the partisans of McENERY? Without question, to have yielded obedience to constituted authority, and sought redress, if convinced that they had been wronged, by the recognized and lawful methods of appeal to the people, thus creating a public sentiment that would undoubtedly have given them a triumph at the next election. That they did not do this is in itself a sufficient proof of the weakness of their cause. The objection that they could not appeal to the people with any hope of success, because Federal power would interfere to prevent a free expression of the popular judgment, is too flimsy to bear examination. The plea is known to be false by those who urge it as an excuse for a refusal to appeal to a people by whose votes they feel they would be crushed. It is the old story of the Democratic Party, determined to rule or ruin.

In pursuance of this purpose, the McEnery partisans have "set upon decent citizens," to murder and pillage them. The one parish where it is undoubted that "chaos is come again" is Grant Parish, and, according to the reasoning of the Democratic organ, it is there that "rascality is the strongest." Fortunately, there is no doubt as to the facts concerning Grant Parish. The evidence accumulates that the affair at Colfax was a brutal massacre of some one hundred negroes for the crime of being black and Republicans. And the testimony is direct and positive that many of these were shot down in cold blood after they had surrendered. What is the excuse for it? That they had fired on a party advancing to answer a flag of truce; but an attempt is made to suppress the other fact that when the negroes displayed the white flag the whole McEnery crowd rushed in upon them. Can the advocates of a "white man's government" in Louisiana point to any case where the negroes have sought to establish and maintain political power by such means? Do they know of any place where the negroes or the white adherents of the Kellogg rule have made an organized attack upon their opponents and followed it by a cruel butchery?

The people will make no mistake in fixing the responsibility for the disorder that reigns in Louisiana. The McEnery faction, encouraged and sustained by the Democratic Party, has appealed from the ballot to the bullet. The American people know that Gen. GRANT has sought to do his whole duty, and nothing more, in Louisiana, and they expect him to do this to the end. Order must be restored in that distracted State; murder from political motives must be stopped. The safety of the whole nation requires this, and, if local authority in Louisiana is too weak to do it, a higher must interpose. The people demand the restoration of quiet, the security of life and property to all classes and conditions of citizens everywhere in the national domain. What the President has thus far done since the Colfax massacre to bring its authors to punishment and the State into subjection to lawful authority, is nothing more than is demanded by the occasion. If what he has done and is doing shall not prove sufficient to effect that purpose, the people will expect him to do more.

"Secret Memoirs of Napoleon III."

On the 30th of March one of the Paris newspapers headed a column of its first page with the exciting line, "Secret Memoirs of NAPOLEON III.;" and a succession of chapters has followed in this journal, of which, whatever their historical or literary value, no one, we believe, questions the authenticity. The series was no doubt written by the Emperor NAPOLEON during his exile in England and just before his death. Of course this publication in the paper conducted by M. DE VILLEMESSANT, is intended to favor the hopes of the Bonapartists. Whatever tends to exculpate the late Emperor, to lessen the odium attaching to his memory as the cause or the instrument of the downfall of France, tends to raise his surviving representatives in popular esteem, and to better their chances of regaining power. That which implies so obvious a drift may therefore naturally be taken with grains of salt. We should look, in short, to see the spokesmen of the Republican and Monarchical parties prompt and swift to break the force of statements likely to militate against their interests. But on looking into the matter we find, curiously enough, that it is not so. London correspondents, writing from Paris, declare that these "Memoirs" are emphatically the sensation of the day. Yet the Paris journals, printed next after the Figaro published the first Napoleonic chapter, make not the least allusion to it; and we have not since seen anything in the shape of deliberate refutation. The inference is, that the principal and most significant statements of the "Memoirs," so far at least as they touch the military aspects of the late war, are simply true; and that any attempt at denial would only lead to the deeper emphasis and effect which would be wrought by the process of elaborate demonstration.

We believe, as a matter of fact, that the share of blame rightly to be attached to NAPOLEON III. for the military reverses ending with Sedan has been greatly exaggerated. He was culpable, no doubt, for trusting others instead of seeing that things were as they should be himself. But, save for this original sin of negligence, it is difficult to see how the Emperor can fairly be held responsible for the French overthrow. What have been termed his errors of judgment might, but for unlucky accidents, have been hailed as master-strokes of sagacity; and to say that his whole heart and interest were not in the struggle, is more absurd even than to impugn his personal courage. As regards the leading statements referred to, some of them, it is to be observed, have already been made in print without being successfully combated. From internal evidence in the chapters of the "Memoirs" already published in the Figaro, it becomes clear that the pamphlet called Les Principes, printed shortly after the era of the Commune, and ascribed to an "Ancien Diplomate," as well as the pamphlet of later date called Les Forces Militaires de la France, bearing the name of M. DE LA CHAPELLE, were written entirely by NAPOLEON himself. The statements and text of the former are nearly identical with what has just been published by Figaro, and as respects the latter, a note from the Emperor now printed gives conclusive evidence. "At some future time," he writes to M. DE LA CHAPELLE, "you will publish all, and thus my poor work will see the light in its entirety."

The first and most important matter set forth at great length and detail in the "Memoirs" is the terrible discrepancy that existed between the number of troops promised by Marshal LEBŒUF and what he was actually able to put into the field. The Marshal told NAPOLEON he could dispose of an army of 588,000 combatants. All that came to be mustered on the frontier were 220,000. It was supposed, at the same time, the German force would aggregate 300,000. In fact, it mustered nearly three times that figure. The arrangements contemplated by Marshal NIEL in 1868 were so imperfectly carried out that valuable time was lost at the precise moment when celerity was indispensable to avert disaster. The Emperor discovered all this, to his bitter chagrin, when it was too late to repair it. It became necessary to displace LEBŒUF, and NAPOLEON had to take—which he fully acknowledges—the responsibility of intrusting to BAZAINE the command of the Army of the Rhine. The sequence of misfortunes that followed was like nothing more than the fall of a house of cards. The non-relief of Metz, chiefly through the urgent representations against that step made by Marshal MACMAHON—who was afterward, when too late, as urgent the other way; the fluctuating counsels and varying misfortunes after the brilliant but fruitless battles of Rezonville and St. Privat; the forced moves by which NAPOLEON, like a rat in a trap, was shut up in Sedan, where, with the enemy all around him on the heights surrounding the Valley of the Meuse, several hundred pieces of cannon were converging their fire into the town and on what remained of the French Army—all these things are set forth by the "Memoirs" in a way which, if it does not show that a great military genius might not have hewn his path through such tremendous odds and difficulties, at least proves that no one short of such a genius could have done so. Under circumstances like these, to cope with VON MOLTKE and his legions needed a TURENNE or a First NAPOLEON; and even those doughty warriors might have succumbed to such a terrific and incessant storm of adversity.

The weight of some of the conclusions arrived at in these remarkably interesting "Memoirs" may be diminished by future testimony, and the foes of the late Emperor will unquestionably do what they can to affix to his posthumous declarations the prejudice that attaches to purely ex parte evidence. We imagine, nevertheless, that it will be found that the memory of NAPOLEON III. is destined to be relieved in great part of this particular stain of ignominy, and that his posthumous explanations will moreover do much to relieve Frenchmen from that stigma of warlike decadence which superficial history, as a deduction from late events, might seek to apply, and which a proud nation finds it so difficult to bear.

Queer or Crazy?

What constitutes insanity is not always an easy question for any but a criminal lawyer to answer. There is certainly no matter on which even doctors disagree more frequently or more decidedly, and the rules by which ordinary people determine it are hopelessly various and conflicting. An eminent French savant thought that the majority of human beings were more or less insane—a theory which CARLYLE may have had in mind when he stated that in the British Isles there were 34,000,000 of people, mostly fools. Dr. HASLAM, an authority on the subject, is quoted in WILLARD'S Equity Jurisprudence as saying, in reply to the question whether a certain person was of sound mind, "that he never knew any human being who was of sound mind." CHARLES WATERSTON, the celebrated naturalist, by his solitary rambles and affection for uncanny reptiles, incurred, among his literal-minded neighbors, the repute of insanity, with lucid intervals, however, "when he would say, 'Good morning, Ma'am,' as sensible as you or me." The fondness of the poet of Rydale for spouting "pottery" to the mountains of Westmoreland earned for him a similar reputation. Poets, however, have, in all ages, been reputed mad by the people who, like Mr. JOURDAIN, talk prose all their lives without knowing it, and, if we are to believe the author of The Coming Race, will be by that enlightened people finally packed away in the lunatic asylum for good.

When a man, therefore, is to be proved insane, there is a tolerably wide field of precedent to pick from. But unless we wish to accede to Dr. HASLAM'S unflattering diagnosis, it is not always safe to set down a person as insane, because he is eccentric, as was done lately by an English jury in the case of Mr. JOHN KNIGHT, deceased, late of Henley Hall, in Shropshire. Mr. KNIGHT certainly shaped his course of action after unusual models. He lived alone—having quarreled with most of his family—and although wealthy, in a very wretched fashion. One of his favorite diversions was to dress himself in skins, paint his face like a Modoc brave on the war-path, and then, gun in hand, rush in upon his servants. Another—and this, it must be admitted, has a questionable air—was to bring German bands into the house, and have his horses gallop round them as they played. Another was to build splendid green-houses and fruiteries, and then to feed the fruit to his dogs, varying that diet with the choicest mutton.

It is doubtful, however, if these, or even more extraordinary performances, would have cast any doubt upon the sanity of a man worth half a million of dollars, had he not taken the final freak of leaving the most of it away from his family, and to a near neighbor, whom he made also his executor. That seemed, as such an act usually does to the disinherited heirs, conclusive evidence of mental incapacity, and the jury accepted their view of the matter by breaking the will. No doubt, in almost all cases of the kind, juries are greatly swayed by natural sympathy for the heirs. In some respects it is right and proper they should be. Yet it is at least questionable whether such eccentricities, or even the delusion under which the deceased was said to labor—that he was followed by persons plotting against his life—furnished absolute proof of that degree of mental unsoundness sufficient to invalidate a will. In this State it has been held that the mental unsoundness required for that purpose should amount "to idiocy and lunacy, and import a total deprivation of memory and understanding."

The case, however, is not without interest, in view of the examination at present pending, of a person whose utterances have been quite as extravagant as some of Mr. KNIGHT'S alleged acts. These have been taken by one or two physicians of repute as indications of insanity. It is quite as likely, however, that they are only the development of a marked passion for notoriety, and a vanity which has become diseased. That the doctors may tell us is insanity. Yet if every man who writes nonsense, or thinks he is going to be President, is to be sent to the lunatic asylum, that institution will need to be of ample dimensions, or else where shall we find room for the murderers?

MINOR TOPICS.

Some of the street railway companies act on the presumption that their passengers enter their cars for the sole purpose of investing in toy-books and the like literary wares, when the reasonable presumption is that they desire nothing of the company beyond being carried to their destination. The passengers on the Bleecker-street line are especially subjected to the annoyance of being importuned to purchase these decayed literary wares, and something should be done to put a stop to it. There is one of these venders who has made himself especially objectionable. Not content with thrusting the book he desires to sell into your hands, and compelling you to hold it until he chooses to come round again, he gets at the upper end of the car and pours upon the unfortunate passengers a torrent of palpable lies concerning the merits of his goods. He never, by any possibility, has any book which any sane person would purchase, except under such exasperating circumstances as he presents, but by making himself as disagreeable as possible he manages to drive quite a thriving trade. People who buy his trash merely to get rid of this nuisance, are surely entitled to demand that the company shall abate him without delay.

If anyone, however, desires an unmitigated experience of street-car discomfort, he can find it in any of the late night-cars. It may be impossible to keep these cars free at all times from the disorderly and disgusting persons who infest them, but it is possible to make such persons behave themselves while they are in transit. No effort to this end is ever made, and these disreputable people, male and female, are permitted to outrage decorum, in their talk and conduct, to the great disgust and annoyance of honest citizens who chance to be belated. Some night there will be a deadly affray as a consequence of these scenes in these night-cars, and then everybody will wonder why the companies did not have a rule requiring the instant ejection of disorderly characters. As it is now, the conductor calmly contemplates his drunken passenger heaping insult upon his sober and respectable customer as if it were something with which he had not the slightest possible concern. The companies should reform this matter thoroughly and at once, by instructing their conductors to keep order in their cars at all hours and under all circumstances.

The confidence of managers in performances on a grand scale is not yet exhausted, but impresarii are realizing that the positive merit of the entertainments they arrange must be commensurate with their nominal magnitude. Hence there is reason to expect that the Festival Week promised by Mr. THOMAS will be entirely unlike former attempts in a like direction, and that it will be attended by a success denied to the less legitimate efforts of former years. Two very fine oratorio recitals, in which well-known soloists, and the 500 voices of the Handel and Haydn Society are to take part; and a rendering of Beethoven's famed Ninth Symphony by an orchestra 100 strong and the choral forces previously employed in the oratorios, are among the subjects of the announcements. They reveal Mr. THOMAS' very different appreciation of the taste of the New-York public from that of more speculative persons in relation to the culture of both Boston and New-York audiences.

When a man makes a baby an active partner in his business he can be safely said to be devoted to the pecuniary interests of his family, whatever may be thought of his humanity. Such a case can be seen on Broadway, where a speculative person for months past has sought to entice the public into purchasing his patent baby-jumper by displaying its constant operation in his show-window by a child aged about one year. His placard declares that by aid of his machine "the baby can walk, jump, and run, before it can stand alone," and so he [illegible] the unfortunate baby is kept perpetually walking, jumping, and running, by being inserted in a basket suspended from a revolving crank by a rubber rope. The ordinary baby might like this sort of thing as an occasional experience, but this particular baby thus doomed to be always at work demonstrating the supposed merits of a patent jumper, and constantly glared at by curious crowds, is to be pitied. Wasting a child-life in this manner does not appear to be a very reputable way of making money.

One of the remnants of Tammany in the Board of Aldermen is reported to have recently bewailed the fact that the American element has come up in the politics of New-York. It is true, there is some danger that the Milesian is no longer to have the flesh-pots entirely to himself, but the Tammany Alderman is mistaken in supposing that what he means by the American element has come up. The nativity of an applicant for office, we believe, is not to be considered either for or against him; but we hope the old-fashioned questions, is he honest? is he capable? are to be asked and satisfactorily answered before an appointment is made. If, in the redistribution of City offices, the Tammany adherents cannot stand this test, it is their misfortune, and not the fault of a political revolution that made its application possible. In this sense the American element is up, and we hope that it will remain up permanently. We have had enough of the other system, that TWEED made infamous.

It is distressing, no doubt, to the average Southerner, to find further evidence that the pen has succeeded the pistol in the settlement of differences of opinion among the members of the Southern Press. In the good old days of chivalry it was their habit to shoot one another, as a preliminary to an explanation of any offensive article. It was always claimed that this was the only "manly" course to take. Under such circumstances, it is not pleasant to have two Richmond editors doing the very reverse, as of course it must be, unmanly. One writes to know, but in "no spirit of unfriendliness," what is meant by a paragraph; to which the reply is made that the other cannot recognize the right of any one to demand the meaning of any paragraph, but he will say that no personal affront was intended. But he proceeds to raise a grave question, by saying: "I regard the political identity of your paper as entirely separate and distinct from its editorial identity." Number One replies, to say he is glad no personal affront was intended, but expresses his dissent on the identity question, and finally rejoices "that this little interruption of friendly relations between us has been so frankly and fully removed." To this lame and impotent conclusion came an affair that, under the old order, would have produced at least an exchange of shots.

WASHINGTON.

Stupidity of the Slanderers of the District Government—The New-York Revenue Office.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Here is a striking instance of the stupid, reckless, and malignant manner in which Gov. COOKE and his associates of the District Government are assailed by the opponents of the improvement of Washington, who are traducing the present Congress and the District Government together. It was lately charged that "Congress placed in the hands of the Board of Public Works $1,188,062 75, appropriated in March to reimburse the late Corporation of Washington. It would seem, if Congress really intended to reimburse the old Corporation, that this sum should have been used to liquidate a portion of the old debt, or be divided pro rata among the tax-payers of Washington, instead of going into the treasury of the Board for the benefit of Georgetown and the county, to whom none of it was due. This is a fair sample of the reckless manner the people's money was voted away during the closing hours of the last Congress." In another assault of like character the name of W. W. Corcoran, Esq., was used as a cover for the justification of these and similar allegations. Now see how Mr. Corcoran, by his own acts, gives the lie in the most positive manner to this specific allegation. On or about March 15 a warrant passed from the Treasury for $188,000, not $1,188,062, as the above paragraph falsely and stupidly puts it, to the credit of the Sinking Fund Commissioners. Very shortly afterward there appeared a public advertisement inviting proposals for the sale to the Commissioners of $100,000 of the six per cent. ten year bonds of the late Corporation of Washington, based on the receipt of this money from the Treasury, the remainder being used for the liquidation of accrued interest. To this public advertisement Mr. Corcoran, as one of the Commissioners, attached his signature, thus testifying to the legitimate and proper use of the money. Mr. Corcoran has never been favorable to the political and material progress made here of late years, though he has been immensely benefited pecuniarily in the increased value of his very large property; but it is not to be supposed that he will relish the idea of having his respectable name used as a cover for charges which his own official acts show to be malignantly false.

STOCKING THE RIVERS WITH FISH.

Dr. H. C. Yarrow, of this city, some time ago made an excursion through the Southern States in behalf of the United States Fish Commissioner, to select proper places upon the Southern rivers for hatching shad with which to stock those rivers anew, or to increase the limited supply now obtained in some of them. Seth Green, the well-known fish culturist, passed through here day before yesterday, to proceed to the stations designated and begin the operations of hatching. He will first go to Augusta, and when the season has advanced further will proceed to Newbern, and afterward to Weldon, and then to places on the Rappahannock, closing up for the season with the Hudson, about the end of June. Mr. Green has been employed for this work by the United States Commissioner, Prof. Baird. A part of the young shad will be sent West by such railroads as are available for the purpose, to be placed in the headwaters of streams emptying into the Gulf, as the beginning of an attempt to stock the rivers of the Mississippi Valley.

THE NEW-YORK REVENUE OFFICE.

Statements have been published about irregularities in the internal revenue affairs in New-York, and especially in the office of Supervisor Hawley, but they are pronounced by Commissioner Douglass to be absolutely false. He says that the Internal Revenue Office has the fullest confidence in Supervisor Hawley's integrity and ability, and that the condition of the affairs of the Revenue Office in New-York is as good as that of any district in the country.

ADAMS ON SEWARD AND LINCOLN.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The production named at the heading of this article, emanating from the brain of our late envoy at Geneva, has just been submitted to the country through the Press. To deny its being forcible in style and pure in diction is to call in question, which none will do, the ability of its author. Yet in the body of it, through it, as clearly manifest to the view as is a broad stream running through a desert, may be seen, aye, felt, a cold, [illegible] spirit, which in no manner reflects the popular opinion on an important subject dealt with in the discourse. I mean the references by Mr. Adams to Abraham Lincoln and his invidious comparisons with Mr. Seward. This part of the oration could well have been dispensed with, for it appears to be the outgrowth of a feeling implanted in the bosom of Adams at the time his friend Seward was defeated by the Chicago Convention of 1860, and which has rankled ever since. The sod now rests both on the graves of Lincoln and Seward, and as to which was the greater, as manifest during our late civil war, not as a scholar, but as a statesman, may for a moment be briefly discussed, in view of Mr. Adams' criticism. I can well understand this wondrous admiration of Mr. Seward. The subject and the orator were in many respects men of like ilk. Both were collegians, both by nature aristocratic; yet working for the good of the people, both standing aloof from the people, but with gloved hands moving the levers of public opinion. Lincoln, on the contrary, was one of the people—a part of the great living crowd, breathing the same air, associating freely with all, shaking hands as readily with a backwoodsman from Missouri as with a banker from Wall-street. And he was superior to Seward in the fact of this intimate knowledge of his countrymen. The student of mechanics may well understand the construction of a locomotive, and all the various details of its arrangement, but his knowledge is far inferior to that of the grimy, untutored engineer, who daily takes his load of passengers or freight over the railway. It matters not whether Seward graduated with the highest honors of Columbia, and Lincoln in an Illinois log-cabin school-house. The question is who was the man for the 4th of March, 1861, and who was the man during the war? Glance back at the history of those times. Look at Lincoln—from the moment he started from Springfield to Washington—what wisdom, what caution, what patriotism, what winning ways with the people! While speaking kindly to the South, how he conciliated and consolidated the North! On arriving at Washington, he sent for his old friend, but late political foe, Stephen A. Douglas. The result of that interview was, the great speech of the latter at Chicago, which welded inseparably the Democrat and Republican to one common purpose—the preservation of the Union. Think you Seward could have accomplished said purpose so well? Trace Lincoln through the war (a war which Seward said would be "a sixty days' affair," but which Lincoln in his homely language denominated "a big job.") How well he appeared to do the right thing at the right time, the key-note to his successful administration being found in his [illegible] with the patriotic desire of the whole people. The crushing of the Southern rebellion he discovered was not to be accomplished by a brilliant dash or a grand charge, but by a [illegible] steady aggression, by cutting off supplies, and by gradually undermining, weakening, and impoverishing the enemy. From 1861 to 1865 this was the policy of Lincoln [illegible] by his Cabinet, but it was emphatically his. As to who was the [illegible] of the foreign policy of the country, [illegible] one opinion—it was Seward. [illegible] the President, and the [illegible] questioned the action of the Senate in [illegible] of his [illegible] our gratitude be felt ever to the memory of Seward for [illegible] the question that we had but an indirect [illegible] by any foreign Power. The [illegible] Mr. Editor, with Charles Francis Adams and many from the Eastern section of the Union is that they fancy a residence in some sacred locality [illegible] during approaching manhood, [illegible] they may daily recite before Harvard or Columbia professors, for four years, will alone give a genuine diploma for wisdom, forgetting that among the forests of [illegible] and on the prairies of Illinois are reared the truest types of our [illegible], not as collegians—for their education is generally plain and practical—but as men gaining bodily and mental vigor, by attrition with nature and their fellowmen, with whom they mingle in every position in life. Such was the preparatory life of Abraham Lincoln. In conclusion, I most heartily denounce the implication that Lincoln was in any sense a mere adjunct of Seward, and regret that the ex-Minister should throw a sneering sneer at one, before whose shrine of practical wisdom and unaffected greatness he might well bow low in the dust.

C. B.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, April 19, 1873.

The Weekly Times as an Advertising Medium.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A prominent firm, who manufacture agricultural implements on a large scale, and who advertise extensively in all the leading papers, sent me the following private letter, which speaks for itself. Not wishing to offend the advertising fraternity, at whose hands they have received generous treatment, they request me to withhold their name from the public.

GEO. W. BEST,
General Advertising Agent, Utica, N. Y.

NEW-YORK, Monday, April 14, 1873.

Geo. W. Best, Utica, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: Commencing Jan. 1, 1872, we decided to limit our advertisements to a list of fifteen or twenty leading papers having a general circulation all over the country, with a request at the bottom of said advertisement, that correspondents in addressing us would please mention where they noticed the advertisement which induced them to write. As a result, we are fully justified in stating that four-fifths of the patronage received in this way refers to the NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES, (in which our advertisement was inserted through your agency,) by far the best advertising medium on our list.

Very respectfully.

The Tribune's Letters [illegible]

WHAT THE TRIBUNE THINKS ABOUT IT.

That the candid and earnest letters of our South Carolina correspondent have attracted much attention is sufficiently apparent.

WHAT FRED. DOUGLASS THINKS ABOUT IT.

New National Era, April 17.

While the New-York Tribune has a special agent traveling through the South for the purpose of taunting, through his correspondence to the Tribune, the colored people for their lack of an education denied them by law, the colored people of the State of Delaware are vainly supplicating that State to tax them for the support of schools, and to allow them the privilege of enjoying educational facilities.

The New-York Tribune may rave and attempt to incite the Nation against the colored people of the country; the State governments may throw obstacles in the way of the colored man's advancement; it will be to no purpose against the irrepressible desire and determination of the colored race to advance. As prejudice against the negro is dying out, the New-York Tribune takes the field as the champion of hatred and oppression, and by its harsh criticism and exaggerated accounts of the negro at the South gives new courage and strength to that kind of feeling exhibited by the Legislature of Delaware in its refusal to allow colored people school facilities.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

Probable Date of Adjournment—Newspaper Claims—The Supply and Police Justices' Bills—The Lobby.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Saturday, April 19, 1873.

The Legislature will probably adjourn about the 14th of next month. If it does, there are some twenty-one working days in which to dispose of unfinished business and whatever may be introduced during that period. The Assembly has passed 391 bills out of 1,382; the Senate 280 out of 580. The usual rush at the close of the session seems inevitable in view of these figures. The Appropriation and the Supply bills have not been passed yet. The former has been in the hands of the Senate Finance Committee for nearly a month, but the chief work is done on it there and not in the Senate, so it is not likely to provoke long debate there. The Supply bill is in the House, and has not been considered in Committee of the Whole, but will be next week. It will not readily be disposed of in either Senate or Assembly. It is an old bone of contention, in which every one seems to have a direct personal interest, either in getting something into it, or having struck out something already there. The chief pressure, however, is on the first-mentioned side. Long debate over it, therefore, may confidently be looked for. After these bills there are the constitutional amendments to be considered, and these will come up just as everybody is going home. Mr. Prince, too, has an additional amendment, reported from his Judiciary Committee, to give women—or female citizens as it is expressed—the right to vote if they have paid a tax on real or personal property to the amount of $250 within one year preceding the election. Altogether there is plenty of material for talk still before the Legislature, but if the important measures are passed, there need be no regret at a few hundreds of the local and special bills being left behind when the two Houses go home.

NEWSPAPER CLAIMS.

I mentioned in a previous letter the extreme vitality which the whole tribe of newspaper claims against the City would show; that frequent killing would not make them die, nor any amount of smothering keep them out of sight. The three or four bills on this subject which had already been introduced, received an addition on Thursday. The men who are pushing them had found out that neither from the House nor Senate Committees could they rescue their bills, and their case seemed desperate, for this session at least. Any committee may be compelled to report a bill by resolution of the House, but this was useless to newspaper claim men, for they could only hope to succeed to even a moderate degree by working in the dark. So a plausible-looking bill was drawn up, appointing a commission, consisting of John K. Porter, Edwards Pierrepont, and Mr. Baker, of the firm of Godwin & Baker, printers, to pass upon the claims. What the other provisions of the bill are I have not yet ascertained, for it is in the drawer of Mr. Prince, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. There is to be a hearing on it on Tuesday afternoon, when Controller Green will be represented and the claimants against the City; and a copy of the bill may possibly be made at that time. It is represented to have been drawn up in so apparently harmless a manner, any doubts which might yet have been entertained being set at rest by the respectable names in its first section, that its framers induced Mr. Crary to introduce it, that it might get into the House with a flavor of respectability about it. The Judiciary Committee were so well pleased with it, that they agreed, during the [illegible], to report it favorably to the House [illegible]. Luckily, some influence [illegible] brought to bear to induce the committee to hold back a little; and the arrangements were made for the hearing on Tuesday. Of course the names of the commissioners in the bill were simply a blind. Once the bill was in the House, a speedy change would have been effected in that particular. Some [illegible] member from the City would have [illegible] the House be directed to state that [illegible] named had declined [illegible] their places he would [illegible] that is, with the men [illegible] would form the commission. [illegible] the light has been let on to the bill, its chances of success are not quite so good [illegible] have been. Mr. Prince, however, is [illegible] to it. He says it is a case on which much may be said on both sides.

THE CHARTER.

The Charter will not be ready for the Governor till Monday next. The whole bill had to be [illegible] after it had passed. Despite all the care, and trouble, and scrutiny which the charter gave, and to which it was subjected in the Senate, it is stated that a supplemental bill will be necessary to remove incongruities which exist in it, or supply omissions which have been overlooked. Whether the innumerable amendments which were made are the cause of this, or whether the defects were in the original bill and escaped attention, does not yet appear, the probability is that the responsibility for them is pretty well mixed up and spread around.

THE SUPPLY BILL.

The most remarkable thing about a supply bill is the discovery one makes in its pages of the large number of persons who have claims on the State for "extra" services; and, next, one wonders at the patience of claimants who appear in it for payments of debts due to them for years. Almost the first item which catches the eye in the present Supply bill is an appropriation to satisfy a debt which seems to have become due in 1855; a paragraph or two beyond and we come to compensation to an official for preparing his final report after the expiration of his term of office. The inquiry might be made why he did not do it before. So the bill goes on, "compensation for extra services" being its most common phrase. It does not, by any means, follow that these claims are fraudulent or even doubtful. But it will be readily seen how easy it is to get little jobs slipped into a bill which has to clear up all the odds and ends of indebtedness which the State contracts from year to year, and for which there is no provision under general laws. As a matter of fact, the present bill is conceded to be, so far, a very moderate one. An experienced officer of the Assembly stated that it was the smallest he had ever seen come from the committee.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

One item in this bill is sure to be hotly discussed, preparation for an attack on it having already been made. I refer to the paragraph on page 28 of the bill, making an appropriation of $1,500,000 for the new capitol, and naming four Albany men as the new commissioners. The special cause of grievance is in the appointment of the commissioners. It is not improbable that an effort will be made to give the whole matter a thorough reforming, and place the management on strict business principles. First, the power of the commissioners will be cut down and limited to that of an advisory and superintending board; the Superintendent will be given fuller powers and held to a strict accountability, and the commission will have one or two good men from New-York and some other city placed on it to counterbalance the inclination of the Albany men to use their position for local political [illegible]. I do not say all this will actually [illegible], but efforts in this direction certainly will be made. Every one agrees that it [illegible] were made.

[illegible]

[illegible] been ascertained in [illegible] to throw light on the peculiar circumstances under which it was passed. [illegible] tale that money had been raised to buy votes against it. Money was raised for that purpose in liberal sums, and a leader of the Black Horse Cavalry, who had been particularly prominent in his opposition to the bill, was ready, at the door of the House, to buy every vote that offered. But the New-York delegation—I mean, of course, the Republican part of it—stood united in its support, and no man would risk his reputation by opposing it under such circumstances. Suspicion would have been at once excited. But there were those among that delegation who were in favor of having the bill in the shape it finally took, and they had the power in their hands to make it so, for division would have been fatal, with the influences at work against it. It thus became a question whether the bill should be amended, or not passed at all; and those who desired it in its original shape gave way. As it happens, no harm will follow. Mr. Eaton, who drew the bill, has expressed himself quite satisfied. He, in common with other friends of reform, has every confidence that the appointments made under it will be all that could be desired.

LOBBYING.

In the reference just made to the fact that money was offered for adverse votes on the Police bill, it is not to be understood that they would have been bought wholesale. Undoubtedly some would have been bought, if circumstances had made it safe to accept bribes; but the fatal feature of a division among the New-York delegation would have been that the Republican ranks would have been disorganized. Here the men who offer bribes and those who take them would have found their chance; without this they are powerless. There never was a greater mistake, and, it may be added, a greater injustice done, than to suppose that votes can be bought by the dozen in an average-ly good Legislature. The testimony which has been given before the Erie Investigating Committee has proved one thing beyond question—that men who are professional lobbyists pocket at least seventy-five per cent. of the money which they extort from their dupes under the pretense of buying up members. There are men in this Legislature, as there have been in all, who are ready to sell their votes; but such men are generally known. They make but a small percentage of the total number. Looking round the present Legislature, one sees dozens of men who are farmers, men of intelligence rather above the average of their class, and selected because they are so. They are men fully up to the common standard of integrity and honesty; and that man must have a low opinion of his fellows who can, after acquaintance with them, believe that they have been desirous of a seat in the Legislature simply to make money out of it. Yet nothing is more common than to see sweeping charges of this character made against the Legislature. Why this is so was partially explained by one of the witnesses before the committee I have referred to. He explained the modus operandi of the professional lobbyists in this wise: A bill is introduced which one of this disreputable class thinks is a proper subject to work on. Possibly it is for the incorporation of a company, or some railroad bill or other measure affecting a rich corporation. He goes to several members and rouses their suspicions of the bill; tells them it is a fraud, a monopoly, &c., for which they ought not to vote. This done, he posts off to the parties who desire the passage of the bill, tells them Mr. So-and-so is opposed to it, or, more probably, submits a list of men who he declares will certainly vote against it; but these, he mentions, have their price, and for a certain sum he will buy off their opposition and secure the passage of the bill. The money is paid over; it is a secret transaction; there is no awkward evidence of the contract; and with the money in his pockets the lobbyist comes back to Albany. He goes to the men with whom he had previously talked, but not to buy them. He meets one, and in apparently hot haste addresses him something like this: "Here, Mr. So-and-so, I was mistaken in that bill. It is perfectly right. I was thinking of another one entirely; this is correct enough." The member is not personally interested in the bill; very likely he has not even looked at it. It is a matter of indifference to him whether it passes or not. He thinks no more of the matter, the bill passes, the lobbyist pockets the money, and the Legislature gets the credit of being composed of rascals who may be bought at so much per head. Of course, there have been occasions when money was freely used, and notoriously so; but this has been under the Tweed administration, when everything was tainted with corruption. Even then it was more than probable the money went into the pockets of a much smaller number of men than it was commonly supposed to. The professional lobbyist trades on the distrust of his fellow-men; when people who do not go to the Legislature place a little more faith in the integrity of those they do send there, the trade of the lobbyist will become much less remunerative than it is now. So long as people believe every man to be a rogue till they know him to be honest, just so long will the tribe of lobbyists continue to thrive.

OBITUARY.

Mr. George Bliss, of Springfield, Mass.

George Bliss, one of the oldest and best-known citizens of Springfield, Mass., died there, on Saturday night, in his eightieth year. He was several times a member of the Legislature. He was President of the Senate in 1835 and Speaker of the House in 1853; a member of the Executive Council in 1848 and 1849, and a Scott Presidential elector in 1852. Mr. Bliss was a lawyer by profession, but devoted himself largely, especially during the last half of his life, to railroad enterprises. He was one of the originators of the Western, now the Boston and Albany, Railroad, of which he was General Agent from 1836 to 1842, and subsequently for three years its President. He was also one of the originators of the Hartford and Springfield Road, and was interested in many other railroad enterprises. From 1850 to 1852 he was President of the Michigan Southern Road; in 1853 and 1854, President of the Chicago and Mississippi; and again from 1853, till he retired from active business, in 1860, President of the Michigan Southern. He was also an active director of the Chicago and Rock Island Railroad, in its early history. He was a warm friend of all local charities and public enterprises, having been one of the strongest supporters of the City Library, and Hampden Park was laid out under his direction. He was the father of Col. George Bliss, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New-York.

Reciprocity Between the United States and the Sandwich Islands.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 20.—The bark Kate, with Honolulu dates of April 2, has arrived here. The news is unimportant. The question of reciprocity agitated all circles. The Press suggests that the United States agree to a treaty never to encroach upon the independence of the Kingdom.

The Railway Controversy—Letter from Minister Washburne.

Hon. E. B. Washburne, Minister to France, has addressed the following letter to an old friend in Illinois:

PARIS, France, March 28.

DEAR SIR: A week ago I wrote to an old friend of mine in Jo Daviess County that if the farmers of his neighborhood should get up a subscription in aid of the parties who are made the victims of the audacious persecutions of the Chicago and Alton Railway Company, to put me down for the small sum of $25. I see to-day in the Chicago Inter-Ocean the proceedings of a recent meeting of the farmers at Odell, and that you were made Chairman of a committee to raise funds to assist in carrying on the defense in these atrocious suits, instituted for the purpose of intimidating and breaking down every man who will not submit to the illegal extortions of the corrupt railway monopolies in our State. For fear that what I have ordered subscribed may not be made immediately available, I beg to send you $25 more by a New-York draft for that amount.

I made a speech to a farmers' convention in Morris, Grundy County, in 1866, in regard to the extortions and oppressions of our Illinois railways, and then proclaimed that the whole railway system of the State had become a vast and terrible monopoly, never before known or dreamed of in a free country. I confessed, however, that I had little hope of any immediate remedy, for the people had not then suffered enough. But six years of uninterrupted and shameless plunder by these corporations have aroused a people who have slumbered too long on their rights. While there is to be a terrific contest between the oppressed and the oppressor, victory will finally perch upon the banner of eternal right and justice. As I said in my speech on that occasion, "the longer it is delayed the greater the oppression, the more fearful will be the retribution."

Though in a distant and foreign land, I watch with intense interest the fight now going on between the people and the monopolies. All my sympathies and interests are with a people among whom I have lived for a third of a century, and from a portion of whom I have received so much support and kindness as to make my heart swell with emotions of pride and gratitude which no words can express.

I am, very truly, your obedient servant,

E. B. WASHBURNE.

JOSEPH I. DUNLOP, Esq., Dwight, Ill.

MURDERED BY A GAMBLER.

How a Bowery Faro Bank Keeper Beat a Man to Death—Three Men Arrested.

The faro bank on the second floor of No. 40 Bowery is nominally kept by Thomas Barclay, a brother of ex-City Librarian Jim Barclay. The ex-City Librarian and another member of the family, known as "Butch" Barclay, are reputed to own shares in the game. The dealers are Andrew McIntyre and Jim Selzer. On Wednesday night last persons living in the rear of No. 40 Bowery heard a struggle in the gambling saloon and a man's voice imploring mercy. At that time one of the most brutal and cowardly assaults possible was being committed. Herschel Mendlebaum, of No. 83 Avenue C, is a man well known to the police and detectives as a member of a family noted for the facility with which they purchase stolen goods. On last Wednesday evening, accompanied by one Alf. Weaver, he entered Barclay's place and began playing faro. He lost $200 over the board, and then called for $100 worth of checks, which he also lost. These checks he refused to pay for, saying that he had been "skinned." The dealer said, "You mustn't do that, for I will have to pay. If you make good $50 I will make good the other $50 and square the house." "I will do nothing of the kind," said Mendlebaum. He was at once seized by Barclay and some other man and dragged into the back room. They knocked him down, danced on him, and kicked him about the head. They kicked him until he became insensible. His jaw was broken, and there were eight terrible cuts on his head. In this condition he was carried down the stairs, placed in a carriage, and driven home by Jim Selzer. He has never recovered consciousness since, and three doctors in attendance on him have but faint hopes of recovery. Capt. Kennedy receiving information regarding the affair on Saturday night, detailed Detective Dolan to arrest Barclay and any others against whom there was any suspicion. Barclay was not around his usual haunts on Saturday night, but yesterday evening, Detective Dolan caught him with Andy McIntyre, in Centre-street, and arrested both men. Later in the night Jim Selzer was picked up in the Bowery and brought to the Station-house. The three prisoners were taken by Capt. Kennedy and Detective Dolan to Mendlebaum's residence, late last night; but owing to the comatose condition of the wounded man, he was unable to identify any one. Coroner Herrman has been notified, and will take Mendlebaum's ante-mortem statement if he regains consciousness.

Private Bankers—A New Bill.

An act is now before the Assembly which provides that private bankers throughout the State of New-York must submit their books and affairs to the inspection of the State officers. The exact motives for such legislation are not apparent, and the measure is regarded in banking circles as an inquisitorial and unjust act, and an invasion of private rights which every member of the business community, irrespective of his calling, should unite in opposing, as it would establish a precedent which might prove dangerous in the future. The reasons which induce an examination of the affairs of corporate institutions do not apply to the affairs of a private firm, since self-interest will naturally lead to conservative action with ones own funds, whereas officers intrusted with the funds of a corporation, in which they are not interested, will sometimes be led into making an improper use of the same.

It is claimed by bankers that the commercial interests of New-York would also be exposed to danger by such exactions and requirements as the act contemplates, which are not exacted in any other part of this country, nor in any foreign commercial country.

The following is a copy of the bill which was introduced by Mr. Burritt, has been twice read and referred to the Committee on Banks, reported favorably from said committee, and committed to the Committee of the Whole:

AN ACT in relation to private bankers who receive money on deposit.

The People of the State of New-York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. All persons, firms or corporations now engaged in the business of private banking and receiving money on deposit, are hereby required, on or before the 1st day of July, 1873, and all persons, firms, and corporations who may hereafter engage in the business of private banking, shall, before commencing such business, be required to report to the superintendent of the bank department their name and place of business, and shall thereafter, whenever they change their location, or whenever any firm doing such business shall change its firm name, notify the superintendent of the fact of such change.

SEC. 2. After the first day of July, 1873, all persons, firms and corporations doing the business of private bankers, and receiving money on deposit as aforesaid, shall be required to make quarterly reports to the superintendent of the bank department, and shall be subject to all the provisions of chapter 419 of the Session laws of 1847, and all amendments thereto, regulating the reports of incorporated banks, banking associations and individual bankers, so far as the same may be applicable to such private banking business.

SEC. 3. All such persons, firms or corporations failing to make report to the superintendent of the bank department, as provided in section 1 of this act, or who shall fail to make such quarterly reports, shall be subject to the same penalties now prescribed by law in case of the failure or neglect of any bank, banking association, or individual banker to make such reports.

THE MARS HEAD WRECK.

Recovery and Burial of the Bodies of the Lost—The Case of Quartermaster Thomas.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HALIFAX, N. S., Wednesday, April 16, 1873.

The boisterous weather which has prevailed on the western coast since Sunday last has prevented the divers from working on the wrecked steamer Atlantic. As a consequence, very little new matter concerning the wreck or her cargo of goods and dead bodies has been reported these last few days. Most of the representatives of the New-York and Boston Press, who were here watching events as they daily transpired, have taken their departure. The nine days wonder is nearly ended, and the tragedy and all its horrible surroundings are rapidly sinking into oblivion. The White Star Company have at last taken decisive steps to cause the bodies of the cabin and steerage passengers still entombed in the wreck to be recovered, urged thereto, no doubt, by an indignant public, who viewed with no less horror than they did the recovered victims of the disaster who have been buried on these shores, the indifference, amounting almost to inhumanity, exhibited by the company and its agents here in the matter of assisting the friends and sympathizers of the dead to recover the bodies from the wreck. Capt. Sheridan, the diver, offered to devote special attention to the mournful duty, provided he was paid at the rate of $50 for the body of every cabin passenger, and $20 for every steerage passenger brought up. The agents demurred to this proposition at first, as they considered the charges too high; but after consulting with the New-York office, and receiving instructions to accept the offer, Capt. Sheridan was directed to proceed with the work on his own terms. This he will immediately do as soon as the weather permits, and hopes are strongly entertained that all the bodies supposed to be still in the hull of the Atlantic will soon be recovered from their ocean coffin and placed in hallowed ground. As it is generally believed that considerable quantities of goods saved from the wreck by fishermen living in the vicinity of Prospect have never been restored to the agents, the salvors preferring to take the risk of surreptitiously disposing of the same sooner than hand them over and receive the legal salvage, warrants have been issued to search for the goods and to make the holders thereof disgorge. The fishermen, who rendered good service around the wreck the first three or four days after the disaster in recovering bodies and property, have been forbidden to approach the ship by the Customs officials. They are very indignant at this, and say that the divers could have recovered more bodies than they did; that they wanted to receive payment for the work, and urged on the Customs authorities to keep the fishermen off, who were willing to grapple for the bodies without pay.

There appears to be a conflict of evidence between the officers of the Atlantic and Quartermaster Thomas, who, upon the investigation, and in his previous statements, alleged that he cautioned the second officer, Metcalf, about running too close to the land. The officers assert that Thomas did nothing after the vessel struck, and Capt. Williams says that such a breach of discipline would not have been tolerated. On the other hand, twenty-six of Thomas' shipmates have signed and published a certificate to the effect that it was mainly through the instrumentality and undaunted courage of Thomas that they owed their lives. Thomas' evidence and statements given here are looked upon as having a very important bearing upon the disaster, and despite the assertion, on oath, of Mr. Brady, that the stories told by him or his (Thomas') activity in saving life were not true, and that he only thought of saving his own life, more reliance is placed in Thomas' story than in any told by Brady or the other officers. It is only due to this man that the misgivings he had in his own mind respecting the ship's proximity to a dangerous coast should be fairly weighed, and to note the more than ordinary precautions taken by him as a petty officer, and the over-anxious remarks made by him to the second and fourth officers, "That the ship ought to stand to the south-west, and that she had run the distance necessary to make Sambro Light." It will be remembered that Thomas stated that from the latitude and longitude obtained from a cabin passenger at 1 o'clock on Monday, he formed a calculation in his own mind respecting the distance the ship was from land, which led him to make the remark to the second officer as above. When it is taken into consideration the despair that must have filled his mind when the ship struck and his worst fears were realized; that while making every effort to save the life of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mooney, and her child, he was also striving to render every assistance in providing a means of rescue for the other passengers; that when he returned to the place he had left his relative and her child, it was only to discover that an angry wave had dashed them into the mighty deep and dark waters; and that he had after that exerted himself with a heroic bravery which has challenged the admiration of every person who has read the story—and called for the written testimony of his shipmates—it can scarcely be believed that such a man deserves to be stigmatized with inactivity in saving life. Quartermaster Thomas is already in the possession of three medals from the Royal Humane Society for his previous deeds of bravery in saving life. He left here for England on the 8th inst., where his friends say he will not want for proofs of his activity in saving life on this sad occasion.

The citizens of Halifax have taken a deep interest in Thomas, from the fact that there appeared to be a concerted action on the part of Capt. Williams and his officers to throw discredit upon the statements made by him. What their object was is easily seen. It would never do to permit Thomas' statement to go forth unchallenged, as it was the most damning evidence of utter carelessness and incapacity that could be given. A little incident occurred at the investigation on Saturday, when Quartermaster Owens was giving his testimony, that has set people thinking a good deal about this sad business. Owens was asked by the Commissioner how he accounted for the discrepancy in the statements that the ship was only going at the rate of eleven knots, but had run 170 miles in fourteen hours, or from the time the last observation was taken until she struck. Owens had previously undertaken to say that he understood navigation thoroughly, kept the log, and knew as much as any other officer on board, still he could not account for the discrepancy. The Commissioner desired him to show by figures, and handed him paper and pencil. He was about to proceed, when at a given signal from one of the officers he declined, saying that he could not cipher that day. The fact of his refusing was the subject of much comment, and threw a grave suspicion upon the surrounding causes that led to the disaster. The Commissioner told him truly he stood in a very awkward position.

Singular Result from a Scratch by a Wire.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal, April 18.

A very singular result was produced by a scratch from a wire in taking off a "strike" in a brick-yard in the city on last Friday. Mr. Geo. Fults received a slight wound in the left wrist from a wire, and since that time has been growing continually worse, notwithstanding medical aid, until the entire left side has become cold and inanimate as in death, while the opposite side of the body is at fever heat. His friends are very much alarmed for fear that the accident, if not of a fatal nature, will at least cause the paralysis of the affected side.

Funeral of the Venezuelan Consul.

The funeral of Florencio Ribas, late Consul for Venezuela and the port, took place yesterday from the residence of his father-in-law, Jacob L. Seixas, No. 112 West Forty-second-street. The funeral services of the Catholic Church were read over the deceased by Father Gannagan, of the Church of the Holy Innocents, West Thirty-seventh-street. Among those present were Gen. Paez, ex-President of Venezuela, and his son, Raymond Paez, Mr. Hernandez, the Vice-Consul of Venezuela, Mr. Navarro, the Mexican Consul, Mr. Madrice, Mr. Davalli, of Manitrille, Joseph Stuart, Joseph Brandon, Rodrigues Hargues, Marshal Hart, and others. The remains were interred in Green-Wood Cemetery.

A MODEL DETECTIVE.

The Manner of Returning Stolen Property—Detectives Receiving Presents of Plunder from the Thieves.

The particulars of a singular story, showing up the secrets of the manner in which business is transacted by the detectives at the Central office in this City, came to light yesterday. On the 12th of last February Mr. James F. Taunt, a gentleman of means, of No. 151 East Eighty-fifth-street, left his watch, valued at $800, to be repaired at Tiffany's, and riding uptown in a Third-avenue car, fell asleep. On awakening he found that a set of diamond studs, his gold chain and locket, and a magnificent garnet seal ring had been stolen, as he supposed, by a young man who sat next him on entering the car. The value of the property was about $1,000. As Mr. Taunt could not give an accurate description of the suspected man, he did not report the case at the Central office; but meeting a friend, Mr. I. S. Wibert, of No. 132 Bowery, he related to him the case. Mr. Wibert said he would interest himself in the matter, and left a note at the Detective office asking Detective Bennett to call and see him. Three days after Detective Bennett did so, and Mr. Wibert made an appointment that Mr. Taunt should call on the detective the following evening at Head-quarters. Detective Bennett is one of the oldest detectives in the City. On the following evening Mr. Taunt called at the Detective office. Detective Clapp was behind the desk in the outer office. Mr. Taunt was ushered into the sitting-room, away from inquisitive reporters, and was there cordially received by Detective Bennett. Detective Bennett continually asked Mr. Taunt for a description of the thief. Mr. Taunt replied that he could not give any description of the thief, but said he could minutely describe the stolen property. While going over the list of stolen articles, Mr. Taunt's eye happened to fall on the little finger of Detective Bennett's left hand, and there, to his wonder and surprise, he saw his stolen garnet ring.

"What does this mean, Sir?" said Mr. Taunt. "That is my ring you have got on your finger. How did you get it? I demand an explanation!"

"I have had the ring some time," replied Detective Bennett, "and I don't think it can be yours."

"That is not true," said Mr. Taunt; "my wife bought that ring for me at Ball & Black's in 1864, and I have worn it constantly until it was stolen from me."

Detective Clapp then entered the room, and Bennett said: "Mr. Taunt says this is the ring that was stolen from him." Then both the detectives laughed.

Mr. Taunt, however, was not to be put off, and said, "If you wash that ring I can prove it to be mine."

The ring was washed, and Mr. Taunt said: "Turn the flat surface to your eye and look at the light, through the stone. Do you not detect three small black clouds? Now reverse it, Sir. Is there not a notch cut on the convex side of the stone? Now look at the inside of the setting, and you will notice that one side of it is chased and the other is plain. Is that not so, Sir? Now tell me that the ring is not mine, if you can!"

Detective Bennett was very much confused, but finally managed to stammer out that a thief named Jack Turney had presented him with the ring on the very day he called to see Mr. Wibert.

"Very well, then," said Mr. Taunt, "you now have a clue upon which to work for the recovery of my property. It is evident to me that the man who had that ring had my studs, and my chain, and my locket. I give you one week in which to return to me my lost jewelry."

"If this is your ring, you had better take it," modestly replied the detective, offering the ring to Mr. Taunt.

"No, Sir," he rejoined. "Keep it and work the case up on it. I shall expect to hear from you within a week, Mr. Bennett."

Some days passing by, and Mr. Taunt having an idea that the detectives were not working up the case, he called on them. The officers assured him that Tierney said he purchased the ring from a young man who offered it for sale in Willie McKay's store, in South Fifth-avenue, near Amity-street, giving the young man $5 for the ring. Willie McKay bears the reputation of being a "short card" gambler, and of buying stolen goods. Jack Tierney was implicated with Dan Noble in the Lord bond robbery. The detectives further assured Mr. Taunt that Jack Tierney had gone South. Mr. Taunt informed the detectives that they must recover his property, or arrest the thief. The other day Mr. Taunt received a note asking him to call at Police Head-quarters. Detective Bennett brought Mr. Taunt into Capt. Irving's private office, and opening a drawer in a desk, produced a sealed package, bearing the Adams Express mark of Philadelphia.

Detective Bennett said, "This must contain part or all of your property; open it and see."

"No, thank you," replied Mr. Taunt, "it is addressed to you, and you had better open it."

Detective Bennett opened the package, and it was found to contain everything stolen from Mr. Taunt, except the garnet ring.

The greatest efforts were made by the detectives to prevent these facts from becoming public. Private detectives are now working on the case, in order to learn whether Tierney, in going South, stopped on the way at Philadelphia.

SUNDAY'S NEWS.

The following is a brief summary of the news which appeared in yesterday's TIMES:

FOREIGN.

Roving bands of Carlists in the northern provinces continue to stop railway trains and rob passengers.

France, at the request of the Spanish Government, has given permission for the transmission through French territory of a quantity of rifles and ammunition destined for the Spanish forces at Puigcerda. The volunteers in Malaga mutinied on Friday.

The railway between Constantinople and Adrianople has been completed, and trains are now running between the two cities.

The bullion drawn from the Bank of England for shipment to New-York was taken out by the steam-ship Scotia, which sailed from Liverpool on Saturday.

Prince Albrecht, nephew of the Emperor of Prussia, was married on Saturday to Princess Mary of Saxe Altenburg.

The ship Alardus, from Hamburg, with a number of emigrants, arrived in Melbourne, Australia, Saturday. During the voyage thirty-two of the passengers died, and the Captain committed suicide.

An official telegram, dated Havana, April 14, announces the defeat of the insurgent band of Calixto Garcia, on the 13th, by the Spanish troops. Gen. Riquelme states that twenty-one insurgents and four Spaniards were killed and thirteen Spaniards wounded.

A dispatch from Panama, April 11, says a revolution took place there on the 5th inst., headed by Señor Aizpuru, commander of the State troops, and half-brother of ex-President Correoso. The revolution commenced in Arubal, where the revolutionists declared in favor of Demaso Cervera as Provisional President. The revolutionists arrested President Neira, and a collision took place between the National and State troops, one of each faction being killed. Cervera has issued his proclamation as President, backed by the State troops, and Neira, who is in the custody of the National troops, proclaims himself President.

HOME.

In tearing down an out-building, at the Yarborough House, Raleigh, N. C., Saturday, Nathan Fields, a colored waiter, found a package of money containing $20,000 in old State notes and Confederate bonds, $500 in gold and silver, and two gold watches.

The seventh annual Louisiana State Fair begins April 23.

A flood in Montreal has submerged the lower part of that city. Floating ice destroyed a number of houses in the village of La Prairie.

A private dispatch was received in Ottawa, Ontario, Saturday, saying that the Pope died in Rome, on Monday night. It was not confirmed.

The general offices and station of the Midland Railway Company, at Port Hope, Canada, were destroyed by fire Saturday morning.

Lewis Vaughn, alias Frank Burdett, charged with the assassination of Gen. Hindman, in Helena, Ark., in September, 1868, is held in custody, in Memphis, Tenn., to await a requisition from the Governor of Arkansas.

Albert Fortune, an escaped Richmond convict, was recaptured in Baltimore, on Saturday.

Col. W. H. Emery, in command of United States troops in the New-Orleans district, telegraphs to Washington that he had ordered troops to Monroe and Alexandria, La., to act as posse comitatus to the Marshal in the disturbed district. Col. Emery says the Governor of Louisiana has made several requisitions for troops covering ground in several parts of the State, stating the inability of the local authorities to preserve the peace. The order of the President of the 5th of March directs Col. Emery to prevent any violent interference with the State Government of Louisiana. The Acting Secretary of War, Mr. G. M. Robeson, has therefore instructed Gen. Sherman that "if the State Government of Louisiana needs the aid of United States troops to maintain the public peace or prevent rebellion, the Legislature, or the Governor, if it be not in session, should apply to the President directly in regular manner for such aid." These instructions were accordingly sent to Col. Emery for his guidance.

A large meeting of merchants, bankers, real estate owners, and business men generally, was held at the Merchants' Exchange, St. Louis, Mo., on Saturday, to further consider the question of holding a convention of Western and Southern Congressmen there next month. The committee appointed at the previous meeting reported that the Mayor of the city, the members of the city government, and many prominent citizens, who had been consulted, were fully agreed that great benefits would accrue to the entire country from an interchange of views and a full, free exposition of the wants of the great West and the Mississippi Valley to the members of Congress, through an informal conference in St. Louis, and an excursion by the newly-opened railway from St. Louis to the Gulf of Mexico through the Indian Territory and Texas.

At the session of the Knights of Pythias Convention in Richmond, on Saturday, upon further consideration of the Pennsylvania question, it was ordered that the Pennsylvania Lodge be furnished with new rituals, and that her representatives be restored to seats on the floor of the Supreme Lodge.

The Erie Investigating Committee met at the Fifth-avenue Hotel on Saturday. Thos. G. Shearman was examined, and related a conversation he had with Jay Gould, in which he was impressed that Gen. Barlow, Attorney-General, was to be bribed in a certain transaction. W. W. Goodrich testified that the $1,000 paid himself by the Erie Company, was a fee for special services rendered to Mr. Swan, in 1872, and witness was not at that time a member of the Legislature. Witness never heard or suspected that money was used in 1872 by the Erie Company for influencing legislation. Justice Dowling testified that he had no knowledge of any money having been paid by the Erie Company for any change in its management. He denied the charge that money had been paid himself. Supt. Kelso's testimony was to the same effect.

A Riot at Newark.

Early last evening a crowd gathered at the East Ferry-street Depot of the Newark and New-York Railroad, at Newark, and as there was considerable disorder, Officer Mosson ordered them to leave. The men had been in the habit of congregating about the spot, and some of them refused to obey the officer, and finally set upon him when he endeavored to enforce his order. He called for assistance and fired once, but without injuring any one. Two officers came to his assistance, and four men were arrested. They gave their names as August Bruester, William Rosser, and John and Michael Flannigan. They were locked up, and held for examination.

"I lately visited an aunt of mine residing at Half-way, Onondaga County, N. Y.," writes Mr. Dyer P. Sisson, of White Creek, Washington County, N. Y., "and found her in very poor health, suffering with quite a severe cough, which had for some years previous, during the Winter months, kept her confined to the room pretty much all the time. Recommending DR. JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT, she consented to try it, and the result was altogether satisfactory, as the following extract from a letter, since received from my uncle, abundantly shows:

'Your recent visit, so far as my wife was concerned, seemed providential. For two or three Winters in succession she had been laid up with a stubborn cough, and last Fall, just before your arrival, it set in again, resisting all attempts to check it. As you know we were all in some alarm about her, and on your recommendation procured Dr. Jayne's Expectorant. The effect has exceeded our expectations; it has not only relieved her, but brought about a substantial cure, and her health is better to-day than it was previous to being first attacked.'"—World.

NEW-YORK CITY NEWS.

THE CENTRAL PARK.

A Most Glorious Day—The Park Swarming With Happy Faces—Winter and Spring Fashions Oddly Mixed.

So many complaints have been written about the weather that the gentle heart of Spring has at last been touched, and she vouchsafes to give a glorious day to the great swarm of the industrious whose only chance of recreation and fresh air rests with Sunday. Yesterday was all that could have been desired, save that the air was somewhat fresh and searching for the time of year. But the sunshine flooded the streets and the parks with its golden glow, and the birds sang gleefully as they basked in it, cocking their heads knowingly at the little buds that began to peep abroad to see if it was time to come out. The lilacs in the Central Park were tempted and ventured upon expansion, the willows showed tiny leaflets and delicate hints of purple blossoms, and there were thousands of bursting buds upon the flowering currant bushes and the privets. The evergreens showed splendidly, and have passed through the ordeal of the terrible Winter successfully. It was not difficult to distinguish the new-comers in their needle-shaped foliage, for they were a delicately pale green, which contrasted finely with the darker hue of the old leaves, that have borne the ice and snow and the fierce Northern winds. The grass everywhere is perfect, being velvety in its evenness of surface, and of the most lively tints of green. In the open spaces, where the turf stretches out into broad plains, the effect of the care and attention lavished on it was plainly perceptible in the disappearance of the worn spots where in the Summer-time the boys love to play ball. The morning was delightful enough to have tempted everybody to this charming place, but, as is usual with New-Yorkers, few visitors came save our Jewish friends, who make a habit of passing the early morning here. In the afternoon the crowds began to arrive. By every line of cars they swarmed into the Park. And, strange to say, there was a fair sprinkling of the comparatively aristocratic classes, besides those who habitually make the Park their paradise on fine Sundays. Many couples were promenading who had certainly come from St. Thomas' and other Fifth-avenue churches, for their prayer-books were still in their hands. It seemed to be a universal exodus. There were ladies in the most delicate Spring attire, poor sewing and shop girls in their Easter finery, ragged little children playing tag, to the great scandal of the strait-laced. And there were gentlemen in fine Spring overcoats and in heavy Winter overcoats, in Spring suits, and in Winter suits. There were ladies in heavy silks and warm furs, and beside them others in the latest varieties of cameo fabrics. It was evident that if some had come to parade their finery, the great majority had been perfectly surprised by such kindness on the part of Spring, but had determined, like sensible folk, to enjoy the fresh air and the glorious day in their old clothes. It would be impossible to calculate the crowds that swarmed over the Park like emigrating bees. Wherever one looked the ways were all astir with happy people, prattling and laughing in high glee under the gentle influences of the sun. The children were so happy that their little feet would not move in a sedate and Sundayish fashion, but would persist in dancing up and down, as if the happiness within them were of the quicksilver kind, and made them move about in jumps and bounds. A great crowd of children got possession of that circular rustic arbor which commands so fine a view of the southern end of the Park, and commenced a most noisy and hilarious game of romps. Staid people walking in the straight paths below looked up surprised at the riotous happiness that evinced itself in shrieks and screams, and then broke into sympathetic smiles. There was a little group of five children, three little girls and two boys, all dressed in deep mourning, who looked wistfully at the arbor and then glanced at their black clothes, shaking their wise little heads and moving away sadly, with eyes brimming with big tears. The Mall, of course, was crowded, for there the cheap dandies and the shop-girls who follow the fashions at a respectful distance usually congregate. It was pleasant, though, to see the groups around the Shakespeare statue, and to hear the intelligent comments made. Mr. Quincy A. Ward will not do a foolish thing if he will mingle with them some Sunday. It will give a new impetus to his art to know how profoundly he is appreciated by those whom society is apt to consider uneducated and unappreciative. It would do the Park Commissioners good also to join in the company and hear the strictures passed upon the wooden pedestals which still disfigure the Indian Hunter and the Shakespeare. It is really time that a move was made in this direction. As there will always be spots on the sun, as flies will be found in the ointment, as in the sweetest cup the one inevitable drop of bitterness will rise, so in the Central Park there were here and there blots that disfigured the fair scene, groups of drunken, dirty, unshaven men, smoking short pipes of indescribable juiciness. They must have felt themselves out of harmony with the surroundings, and it is possible that the sensation of being pariahs there may breed thoughts leading to a better and purer life. So mote it be, for such is one of the ways in which things of beauty are true educators.

District-Attorney Phelps After the Horse-Car Thieves—Arrest of "Johnny the Greek."

The readers of THE TIMES will remember the arrest and conviction of the notorious Fourth Ward thief, Michael Donovan alias Mahoney, for highway-robbery, by stealing a pocket-book from Mr. Parsons, a gentleman doing business in Washington Market, while he was riding on a Third-avenue car. A sketch of Donovan's career of crime was published at the time. Among other facts, it stated that two other thieves were on the car aiding Donovan at the time of the robbery. District-Attorney Phelps, ever ready to further the interests of justice, directed an investigation to be made, which resulted yesterday morning in the arrest of the notorious thief, "Johnny the Greek," he having been indicted by the Grand Jury. The bench-warrant issued by District-Attorney Phelps rates the crime as "robbery—second offense," so that in case of conviction, "Johnny the Greek" will be removed from the City for at least twenty years. His real name is John Keefe, but in the course of a long career of crime, he has passed under the aliases of Carton, Roach, and Rielley. In former years he made the St. Bernard House, corner of Prince and Mercer streets, his rendezvous, and was arrested there and sent to State Prison for robbery. He came down from Sing Sing a year and a half ago, and has since worked the cars and railroads with Donovan and the mob of thieves who congregate at the corner of Hester-street and the Bowery. He was in Washington on Inauguration day, and stole quite an amount of property. In addition to the robbery of Mr. Parsons, he is "wanted" for stabbing one Frank Burke, in the Sixth Ward. The authorities are in possession of a letter written by Keefe to a prominent criminal lawyer of the City regarding Donovan, and evincing an unusual and suspicious interest in the case.

Ruffianism in Brooklyn—A Policeman Robbed and Beaten on Hudson-Avenue.

The need of a stringent enforcement of the law forbidding the sale of liquor on Sunday was forcibly illustrated in Brooklyn yesterday. At 11½ o'clock A. M., a rough named Edward Murphy reeled out of a liquor-shop on Hudson-avenue, and tried to walk toward Myrtle-avenue. Between that thoroughfare and Johnson-street his condition attracted the attention of Officer Spelman, of the Fourth Precinct, who immediately took him into custody. He resisted, and Officer James Friel came from an adjoining post to assist. Murphy's drunken outcries also brought a crowd to the scene, and the officers, seeing that a riot was imminent, rapped for further assistance. Meanwhile, one of the roughs in the crowd struck Officer Friel in the head with a heavy club, felling him senseless to the sidewalk. The crowd closed in and the prostrate officer received at their hands several cuts and bruises about the head and body. The crowd quickly dispersed, and the officer was laid on a stretcher, insensible and bleeding from his wounds. He was afterward taken to his house, on Franklin-avenue, and attended by Dr. Kissam, who does not regard his injuries as likely to prove fatal. A squad of officers was sent out in search of the assailants, and shortly after 1 o'clock. Murphy, the cause of the row, was found in Cullen's liquor-shop, corner of Hudson-avenue and Tillary-street, by Detective Corr and Officer Spelman. He made a desperate resistance, but was finally secured, and taken to the Fourth Precinct, where he gave his age as twenty-five years, and was locked up. Subsequently Capt. Campbell, with some of his officers, arrested John Kilmead, aged twenty-two; Richard Harris, twenty, and Edward Scott, eighteen, who were recognized among the gang engaged in the assault.

Dedication of the Beekman Hill M. E. Church.

A large number of persons assembled at the Beekman Hill M. E. Church, in East Fiftieth-street, last evening, on the occasion of the conclusion of the dedicatory services, which had been postponed from the previous Sunday. Rev. William Lloyd preached a sermon upon the sufferings and triumphs of Christ at the time of the crucifixion. A collection was then taken up to clear off the debt of $1,000 still remaining upon the church. This sum was promptly subscribed, after which Rev. Bishop Janes called the Trustees to the front of the pulpit and formally dedicated the church. He congratulated the members of the Church upon their success in erecting such a handsome and commodious edifice, and upon the promptness with which they had relieved themselves from their financial obligations. The services concluded with the singing of the Doxology by the congregation and the pronouncing of the benediction by Bishop Janes.

Rumored Contest for the Control of Pacific Mail.

A rumor prevailed among the stock operators at the Fifth-avenue Hotel, last evening, that one of the Transatlantic steam-ship companies has entered the market to buy Pacific Mail Steam ship stock, and in that way obtain control of the company and run it in connection with its own line. It is said that the present management have been aware of the scheme for some days, and will make a desperate effort to prevent its success.

A Desperate Ruffian.

The worst man in the Sixth Ward was apprehended last night, and safely lodged in the Sixth Precinct Station, after breaking a man's leg, and attempting to murder two police officers. Thomas Foley, the man referred to, is an Irish laborer of herculean frame, living in the low tenement-house, No. 11 Elm-street. Last evening he was chopping wood on the lobby, when Thomas Scannell, another resident in the house said something which angered Foley, who rushed at him with the ax, and narrowly missed striking him on the head. Scannell fell down-stairs and fractured his leg in a terrible manner. He was taken to the Park Hospital in an ambulance by Dr. Joyce. Knowing the desperate character Foley bore, Capt. Kennedy sent Officers Gilroy and Hogan to arrest him. They found Foley sitting by the table in his room. They took him into custody, and got him as far as the door, when Foley suddenly turning said, "Do you men want to be cut," at the same time cutting Officer Doran across the hand with a clasp-knife which he had drawn in the dark passage way. Then he cut Officer Gilroy across the forehead three times, wounding him severely. Officer Doran closed with Foley, and succeeded in wresting the knife from him, but in doing so dropped his police club, which Foley picked up and used on Officer Doran. Officer Gilroy used his club without stint on Foley, and finally brought him to terms. The officers' wounds were dressed by Police Surgeon Dalrymple.

The House of the Good Shepherd—A Meeting to Raise Funds for its Support.

A public meeting in aid of the House of the Good Shepherd was held in St. Bartholomew's Church, Madison-avenue, last evening. Rev. E. Gay, Jr., President, preached a sermon, and set forth the objects for which the institution was organized, which was essentially for the support of destitute children, the assistance of young men who are preparing in practical work for the ministry, training of women as teachers and nurses, and for missionary work in Rockland County, in which the House of the Good Shepherd is interested. Funds were needed for carrying on the work, for the support of the institution, and for the erection of new buildings on the premises. The property now consists of ninety acres of land on the Hudson River, with two dwelling-houses and a barn, and the site is beautiful and healthful. The institution is at present supporting and educating fifty children, and its funds are furnished entirely from charitable sources. The receipts the past year from various sources, as shown by the Treasurer's last annual report, were $25,846 33; expenditures for the year, $26,201 59. There is due on land last purchased, $6,000; borrowed money, $481 90. Rev. Mr. Gay made a strong appeal to the assemblage to aid in the maintenance of the institution.

Rev. Dr. Sabine next addressed the audience, and concluded by expressing the hope that they would liberally contribute to the support of the House of the Good Shepherd, which was deserving of success, as it supplied a Christian home for destitute children, and conferred blessings and benefits which could not be readily estimated. A collection was then taken up, and a nice sum realized for its support.

DRUGS, DYES, AND DYEWOODS—Have been extremely quiet, as a rule, though generally held with a fair show of confidence.

FERTILIZERS—Have been moderately sought after, and generally quoted steady in price.

FLOUR AND MEAL—Business has been somewhat brisker in State and Western Flour, within the previous range, chiefly in shipping stock and medium trade extras. Sales have been reported since our last of 11,450 bbls., all told, including inferior to choice Superfine State and Western at $5 75@$6 25, chiefly at $5 85@$6; interior to good Extra State, $6 80@$7 40, chiefly at $7@$7 25; good to very fancy do., $7 40@$8 25; poor to very good shipping Extra Western, $6 75@$7 35, chiefly at $7 for prompt delivery; poor to good shipping brands round-hoop Ohio, $7@$7 40 ℔ bbl.; and trade and family extras at proportionate rates. Of Southern Flour, 450 bbls.; Rye Flour, 150 bbls., and Corn-meal, 200 bbls., were placed at essentially unchanged figures.

GRAIN—Spring Wheat of the better grades has been quoted firm and offered sparingly, but has been quiet; poorer grades rather difficult to place without making concessions which holders refuse to yield, shippers operating with reserve. Winter strong in price, but dull; sales have been reported since our last of 31,000 bushels at $1 64 for strictly prime No. 2 Milwaukee Spring, afloat; $1 58 for ordinary No. 2 Chicago do., do.; $1 50 for No. 3 Spring, car lots; and $2 25 for extra choice White Michigan, car lots, to arrive. For forward delivery, No. 2 Milwaukee Spring was offered at $1 57, option of May and to June 10, but no business was reported, the few bids having been much under the views of sellers....Corn has been quoted a shade higher, on a fairly active movement, mainly in old mixed Western, in store, and, in good part, for export. Sales have been reported, since our last, of 112,000 bushels at 64½c.@65c., nearly all at 65c. for old mixed Western, in store; 66c. for very choice do., part of a boat load; 65½c. for old do., afloat; 65½c.@66½c., chiefly at 66c.@66½c. for new mixed Western; 65½c.@67c. for Yellow do., and an extreme price for very choice White Southern. ....Rye and Malt unchanged....Of Barley, 3,000 bushels very common to very good Western sold at 90c.@$1 10; market dull....Oats rather quiet, but quoted firm for prime lots; sales have been reported, since our last, of 37,000 bushels at from 50c.@54c. for very poor to choice new Mixed Western; 49c.@53c. for new Black do.; 52c.@55c. for new White do.; 52½c.@54c. for Mixed State; 55c. for White do., and, nominally, 53c. for old Mixed Western, in store....Hay and Straw essentially as last quoted....The week's export clearances hence for European ports include 1,203 bbls. Flour, 120,119 bushels Wheat, 126,335 bushels Corn, and 9,242 bushels Rye.

HARDWARE—Dealers report a comparatively fair movement with a generally firm market, despite the extraordinary closeness in money, which has been against free dealings.

HIDES—Have been generally in very moderate request, and quoted easier in prices. The week's receipts have been liberal, comprising 79,077 Hides and 307 bales do.; sales, 43,850 Hides and 200 bales do., the latter including, according to Messrs. Hull & Co., 1,200 Water-damaged Buenos Ayres, sold at auction; 750 Dry Buenos Ayres Kips, 13 lbs., on private terms; 2,900 Dry Matamoras, (part to arrive,) 24 lbs., part at 22c., gold; 2,600 Dry Corpus Christi, 22,800 Dry Texas and Mexican, 1,800 Wet-salted Texas, on private terms; 1,800 Wet-salted City Steers, 70@75 lbs., at 11½c.@12c., currency; 200 bales Manila, on private terms. No. 2 at $3 50 ℔ 280 lbs....Tar firm, but quiet, to-day....Spirits Turpentine higher and active, closing buoyantly. Sales, 750 bbls. merchantable, in lots, part to arrive, at 54½c.@55c., closing firm at 55c.; and 100 bbls. New-York pkgs., buyer April, at 55c. ℔ gallon; also 100 bbls., in lots, from store, at 56c.@58c. ℔ gallon.

OIL-CAKE—Has been more inquired for at firm rates. The week's exports have been 17,730 pkgs. City quoted at $38@$38 50, gold; Western, $40 50, currency.

PETROLEUM—Crude, in bulk, dull; quoted at 9¾c. for prompt delivery; 1,000 bbls., next week's delivery, reported sold at 9½c....Refined lower, and in quite moderate request; sales for early delivery, 3,000 bbls. at 19½c....Refined at Philadelphia quiet; quoted nominally at 19½c.

Western Mess, two-year old stock, at $16 50; and 200 bbls. Western Prime Mess at $17, and 200 bbls. WHISKY—Sold to the extent of only 200 bbls., at 91c., showing a further decline.

WOOL—There has been comparatively little evidence of life or animation in this line since our last. The business in regular channels has been confined within the limits of the more urgent wants of buyers, which have been met by sellers quite promptly at the ruling figures, which have been favorable to purchasers. The stringency in Money continued to operate against values, forcing realizations on the part of some owners to the depression of prices. The demand for manufacturing purposes was very moderate. The trade inquiry was also restricted. The later dealings, though not large in the aggregate, indicated a somewhat steadier temper in the general market, with less urgency apparent to place supplies, particularly of desirable goods. The feature of the week's movements was the auction sale of Thursday, particulars of which have been already given by us. The transactions in Domestic, in the ordinary course, embraced equal to about 280,000 lbs. Fleece at from 45c.@55c., chiefly X to XX, at from 50c.@55c.; 95,000 lbs. Pulled at from 41c.@52½c., the latter an extreme rate for very desirable Super; 55,000 lbs. California Fall, part at 23c.@25c.; 10,500 lbs. do. Spring at 31c.; a small lot of do. Lambs at 29c., and of inferior Texas 16c.; 58,000 lbs. Colorado, part at 21c., but mainly black on private terms, and 22,500 lbs. Scoured within a range of 55c.@78c. ℔ lb. Foreign has been lightly dealt in; 50 bales Buenos Ayres and 90,000 lbs. Australian sold on private terms; 35,000 lbs. Mestiza stock at 55c.@63c., and sundry small lots of Cape at 35c.@36½c. ℔ lb. ....From Philadelphia the report is of some increase in the volume of dealings, but on a very irregular market as to values. X to XX Fleece sold at 50c.@52c.@55c.; No. 1 to Super Pulled at 40c.@48c.; Dry Sheep Skins at $1@$1 50, Green do., $1 50@$2; Shearlings at 38c.@35c....From Boston the advices are of a depressed market, the Commercial Bulletin reporting that buyers have things very much their own way. Fleeces have been sold at lower prices this week than at any previous time this season. The sales have been fair, but the lots sold are, as a rule, small, buyers picking up a few bales in a place whenever they can find stock which can be bought at low prices. Pulled Wools are quiet, and prices are very low, actually and relatively to Fleeces. The stocks are not heavy, but in the present condition of the market are ample, and prices are barely steady. Sales for the week have been 750,000 lbs. domestic, and 40,000 lbs., 120 bales, foreign. Included in the sales were Fleece at 47c.@55c., and Pulled at 40c.@55c., the latter an extreme.

FREIGHTS—Berth freights show more activity, the demand having been mainly for Grain room, with a moderate call for accommodation for Provisions, Cotton, and Naval Stores; rates rather steadier. There was a moderate chartering movement noted at about previous figures, as a rule, with vessels for the Grain and Lumber trade in most urgent request. Vessels for the Petroleum trade were in comparatively limited demand....For Liverpool, the reported engagements, since our last, have been, by sail, 28,000 bushels Corn, from store, at 7d. ℔ bushel, in bags; 200 hhds. At 7 o'clock yesterday morning, George Miller, of No. 45 Johnson-avenue, went into the saloon of Joseph Lehner, at No. 73 Johnson-avenue, and demanded from the latter an explanation of his declaration that Miller was a thief. No explanation being forthcoming, Miller seized a couple of beer glasses, but before he had time to throw them, Lehner had secured a club from behind the bar and disabled his antagonist by a stunning blow on the head. Lehner was arrested.

BETHESDA'S TRIUMPHS—MEDICAL TESTIMONY—THREE SCORE YEARS AND TEN RESTORED TO HEALTH.—Dr. A. H. Heath, No. 200 Broadway, New-York. Dear Sir: You will no doubt remember when I first called to confer with you regarding my condition. I told you I had exhausted my own experience of a fifty years practice as a physician, and drank of all the mineral medicinal spring waters, and had the advice of the most eminent medical talent in our country. I told you my disease had been pronounced to be Bright's disease of the kidneys, complicated with enlarged prostate gland, inflammation and catarrh of the bladder, sandy deposits in the urine, torpidity of the liver, indigestion, constipation, nervous prostration, and incontinence of urine. I have taken but a few gallons of the wonderful Bethesda Spring Water, following your directions, and was cured so rapidly I feel it a duty to acknowledge the fact to you. Respectfully yours, GEO. W. BEAL, M. D. No. 22 St. Mark's-av., Brooklyn.
